Money Grows Rapidly
The Comet Has Gone
Senator Kenyon's Idea.
Vice Pays, Sometimes

— By Arthur Brisbane —

Copyright, 1921.

The Bible savagely denounces usury. In ancient days the church excommunicated any man that took interest on loans, no matter what the interest. That is gone by, and living without work on your interest has become respectable, in spite of St. Paul's statement that a man who does not work shall not eat.

Even in the East interest has gone up to seven and eight per cent. Do you realize what this means to those that get rich by lying back and letting money pile up? Harris, Forbes & Co. of New York, in a well-written advertisement, tell you "at four per cent, compounded semi-annually, $1,000 will amount to $2,000 in seventeen and one-half years. At seven per cent, $1,000 will amount to $4,000 in about twenty years."

There will soon be a new crop of automatically created millionaires.

The Pons-Winnecke comet now visiting within our solar system came close to us, only ten million miles away. Then, obeying the law of gravitation and never having heard of Einstein, it turned around in another direction. If this had happened a few hundred years ago the people would have been on their knees praying to be "delivered from the comet." Preachers would be moralizing and warning the sinful. Now we treat a comet as villagers greet an express train passing through. We know more.

Senator Kenyon has invented a constitutional amendment worth while. It would allow the President to veto individual items in appropriation bills. As the law stands now he is compelled to kill the entire bill or let little pork-barrel appropriations and steal-ings slip through. Congressmen that vote against Senator Kenyon's sensible amendment will prove that they don't want the President to have power to protect the public pocketbook.

Vice occasionally pays, although never enough to offset the evil. Our government in its partnership with whiskey took in hundreds of millions, but not enough to pay back to families of whiskey victims what whiskey cost them.

Next Saturday two prize-fighters will divide half a million. Another million will go to promoters. The government will get three-quarters of a million. Pretty small pay for allowing a prize fight, demoralizing and dangerous in its effect on the minds of boys and young men.

In Europe various forms of vice, especially gambling, are exploited scientifically. One single race, the Paris Grand Prix, last Sunday, brought out bets of more than thirteen million francs. About twenty million francs in all were spent for one Sunday's horse-race gambling. The fund for the poor was richer by 750,000 francs. Lotteries of all kinds are crippling different European governments to solve their financial problems.

It is difficult, as this government knows, to tax great wealth. But vice is easily taxed, doesn't hide, doesn't want to.

Government holds $83,165,876 unclaimed interest on Liberty Bonds. Somebody has hundreds of millions in bonds, but doesn't take the trouble or doesn't know how to collect the interest. More than a thousand millions of temporary bonds are outstanding, never exchanged, as they should have been.

And most remarkable of all, at postoffices and other government agencies people appear every little while asking, "Where do I pay the interest on my Liberty Bonds?" They think THEY have to pay interest to the government on money that they lent to the government.

Many people have much to learn about finance.

Mr. Poulson, lawyer, begins a legal fight to save the life of Mrs. Kaber, who, with the help of five others, killed her husband. The lawyer will say that she was insane, and, what makes the thing interesting, he will, if necessary, exhaust his sixteen challenges to keep women off the jury.

This lawyer shows intelligence. Women have a highly developed sense of justice, and less than men of the wrong kind of sentimentality. Also they understand the nature of women better than men. They are able to read character, and pay more attention to what they see in a person or in a state of facts than what some lawyer tells them.

Women make good jurors. Too good to suit a good lawyer.

SOLLEY SENTENCED TO 6 MONTHS

MILLIONS STOLEN IN FRANCE

Goods Bought With American People's Money Sold to Speculators

New York, June 29.—The New York American today began an astounding expose of the American Red Cross methods in France during and after the war.

Waste, mismanagement and downright dishonesty figure in the tale.

Millions of dollars generously donated by the people of America were stolen outright.

The Red Cross, great agency of human mercy, was debauched to the uses of crooked officials and still more crooked speculators who used the officials as tools.

MYSTERY OF SWEATERS.

Under the sacred symbol of the organization thousands of tons of food intended for war sufferers were shipped, cost-free, along French railroads, for the benefit of the food gamblers.

What became of the sweaters knitted for "the boys at the front" by devoted American women is a chapter in itself, according to the New York American.

This amazing story of shame is based on facts. It is backed by documentary proof. Much of this proof was taken from the secret and suppressed records of the Red Cross itself. It will be placed on record by the Senate investigating committee.

Names of men who have shown themselves unfit are given. More names will be given in future instalments, the newspaper promises.

HOTEL REGINA MEETING.

These humiliating facts came to the absolute knowledge of important Red Cross officials in France at a meeting in the Hotel Regina in Paris.

Present at that meeting were the following: Colonel P. Mygatte, commissioner for France of the American Red Cross; Major Frederick E. Smith, his aide; Major Will Solomon, in charge of the bureau of requirements, American Red Cross; Captain George William Ludwig, assistant to Major Solomon; Captain Frederick LaFlamme, in charge of stores for the Red Cross; Captain Laurance of the French police; Captain William E. Anderson, in charge of the division of investigation, United States army, Paris; First Lieutenant W. W. Denlis, assistant in the investigation department, bureau of personnel, American Red Cross, and Lieutenant Ferdinand M. Francoeur of the Red Cross investigation department.

To July, 1919, the shameful situation in the Red Cross ranks in France became so bad that both the French police and the U. S. army investigators urged that something be done.

Representations made to the Red Cross heads were that this was growing rampant and that ample evidence for prosecution existed.

Colonel Mygatte, most responsible

CRAIG NOT TO SEE DE VALERA

Ulster Leader Declines Sinn Fein Invitation to Conference

By International News Service

London, June 29.—Sir James Craig, Premier of Ulster, today declined Eamon de Valera's invitation to go to Dublin on Monday for a political conference, says a dispatch from Belfast.

De Valera's telegram asking the Ulster Premier to meet him at Mansion House in Dublin at 11 o'clock Monday morning was received late Tuesday. Sir James Craig replied as follows:

"It is impossible for me to arrange any meeting. I have already accepted Premier Lloyd George's invitation to the London conference."

De Valera's non-committal message to Premier Lloyd George is not conducive to Irish peace, according to opinions expressed in Irish office circles today.

De Valera did not indicate whether or not he would accept the Premier's invitation to a peace parley.

To illustrate that war continues in Ireland, Dublin castle advices stated that one loyalist had been killed by Irish Republicans, three houses had been burned and three ambush attacks were made this morning upon Crown forces.

A Cork dispatch reports the killing of Walter Murphy, commander of the Cork Battalion of the Irish Republican army, at his home in Water Fall.

The shooting was done by Crown forces that were raiding Murphy's home. The authorities say that Murphy was responsible for the murder of five officers and a civilian.

Forty-five members of the Irish Republican Army were arrested in County Cork on Tuesday.

GETS TERM IN COUNTY JAIL

Ex-Secretary of Loyal Coalition, However, Is Not Committed for Present

George W. Solley, former executive secretary of the Loyal Coalition, who was recently convicted of immoral acts, was sentenced today to six months in Charles Street Jail.

Sentence was pronounced by Judge Nelson P. Brown in Suffolk Superior Court.

Judge Brown ordered a stay of execution, however, so Solley will not be actually committed until a further court order is made. He will remain at large, in $1,000 bail.

Solley and Mrs. Solley appeared in Judge Brown's court promptly at the hour set for sentence. The Steinhauser trial was interrupted to attend to his case.

Assistant District Attorney Fielding insisted on a jail sentence. Frederick J. Daggett, counsel for Solley, said the testimony of Christopher O'Hare, one of the main witnesses for the State, had been of doubtful value. He referred to Solley's age and the sickly condition of his wife. Judge Brown said that he did not base sentence on the O'Hare testimony.

Reformers Bring Criminal Action Against Fight Principals and Promoters

By International News Service.

Jersey City, N. J., June 29.—Prosecutor Pierre P. Garven of Jersey City will on Friday lay before the Hudson County Grand Jury charges that the principals and promoters of the Dempsey-Carpentier fight are guilty of a conspiracy to violate the New Jersey boxing law and the New Jersey crimes act, it was announced this afternoon. This will be the final effort of the International Reform Bureau to prevent "the battle of the century."

CHAMBER HARSH TO "DRY OFFICER"

John Carr, a member of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, while posing as a prohibition agent, was roughly handled by other members during a "fake" raid that featured the annual dinner of the Chamber at Pemberton Inn.

Later an explanation was made. Carr and Cullen shook hands, and the toastmaster announced that the incident was a joke on him.

SHOT NEAR MEN IN SACCO CASE

Bullet Crashes Through Car Window of Train Bound for Dedham

A bullet today crashed through one of the windows of a Boston-Dedham train carrying persons connected with the Sacco-Vanzetti murder trial.

The police are investigating.

George Woodbury of Randolph, an investigator for the defence, narrowly escaped being hit. He was sitting opposite the window through which the bullet entered. It passed out through the window at which he was seated. He was sprayed with fine particles of glass.

Two Boston telegraphers, who are working at the trial, were two seats behind the window through which the bullet crashed. They are W. J. Ryan and Bruce B. Lytton.

The point at which the bullet passed through the window was a mile from Highland Station on the Dedham side. The train was traveling at twenty-five to thirty miles an hour at the time. The hole in the window was clear cut and about the size of a ten-cent piece. The outer edge was smaller than the inner.

Rev. Dr. Straton Is Going to See Fight

By International News Service.

New York, June 29.—The Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton, pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church and a leader in the reform movement against cabarets and dance halls, said today he would attend the Dempsey-Carpentier fight to gather material for future sermons.

Dr. Straton has never seen a prize fight and he said he would get ammunition to help him in his efforts to prevent a repetition of "such a spectacle."

The clergyman denounced the fight and declared it showed that the people were falling back into the decay that characterized the people in the days of the gladiator shows in Rome.

DIXIE FREED ON OLD CHARGE

"Complete Vindication," Says Blonde Chorus Girl Who Is Suing Broker

"It is a complete vindication of the vile charges made against me," declared blonde Dixie Esmond, former Boston chorus girl, after Judge Duff in Municipal Court today said there was no reason for continuing the case against her and ordered it dismissed. Miss Esmond, who admits that her name is Mabelle Belle and her home in Yonkers, N. Y., said that her arrest recently on a default warrant on a complaint dating back to December, 1917, when she was arrested for being idle and disorderly, was due to insidious propaganda instituted by George E. Perkins, Boston and New York broker, who Miss Esmond is suing for $100,000 for alleged breach of promise.

Girls' Dress Boosts Crime Here, Says Parole Chief

Crime is on the increase in Massachusetts, and the cause is bootlegging and the present day dress of women, according to Chairman Frank A. Brooks of the State Board of Parole.

Figures for the year ending June 1 show that 2,900 persons were committed to penal institutions of the State during that period, an increase of 681 over the preceding year.

"Bootlegging and women's present-day dress, which turns our streets into burlesque stages, are the principal causes for this increase," said Dr. Brooks today.

"There are a lot of subnormal men on the streets. They are excited by the dress of girls and women. Sex crimes have enormously increased, especially attacks upon young women.

"Marriage has become a joke. Young men steal to gratify the luxury craving of modern women. There is too much dance hall, too much of the shimmey and the camel walk.

"Discipline has broken down. The old New England home is fast disappearing.

"What we need is firmer discipline in the home, the school and the church. There must be moderation in the dress of our women."

Halifax, N. S., June 29.—Another attempt was made today to float the famous fishing schooner Esperanto, winner of the international fishermen's race last year, but just after the bow had been raised by the crew of the wrecking trawler Fabis something went wrong with the inflated pontoons and the vessel sank again.

Repairs have been made to the pontoons and efforts to salvage the schooner are being resumed.

To the Real Estate Dealer this means he is busy because that people are awakening to the fact that it is advantageous to buy their own home now that it is cheaper to buy than to pay rent. FIN. COM. TAKES MAYOR TO TASK

"Didn't Know What He Was Talking About," Says Report on Street Repairing

The Finance Commission tells Mayor Peters, in a report submitted to him today, that he was all wrong and did not know what he was talking about when he told the United Improvement Association last month that "public service corporations making openings in streets are alone responsible for their repavement."

The commission says:

"It seems clear that the responsibility for restoring and repairing such openings belongs fully and solely to the city, with ample provision for reimbursement by the party or corporation permitted to make such openings.

"The following recommendations are made by the commission:

1—That the commissioner of public works make an examination of all streets where permits have been granted to any person or corporation to make openings.

2—That after such examination, all openings found not to have been restored to their original condition as regards street surface be so restored as soon as possible.

"The most glaring blow at city officials in the report is that repair work on School street in front of City Hall has been well done, while that in the block directly along Atlantic avenue it has been grossly neglected.

The report further says:

"Until the department charged with this work requires carriers storing pavements to do it in a workmanlike manner, whatever may be the expense, there will still be seen patches on our granite block paved streets.

"There are many cases where street openings have apparently been neglected and require immediate repairs. By far the greater part of such openings are apparently due to the operation of the superior sewer of the City of Boston, either in repairing the general service pipe or on account of the work of the high pressure fire service."

SCORES IMPERILLED BY BROKEN BOOM

The lives of scores of persons were endangered by the breaking of a boom, suspended from the top of the new eleven-story National Shawmut Bank extension on Devonshire street today, only a wooden support in front of the building and a steel cable preventing it from crashing to the sidewalk.

A heavy load of building materials had just been removed from the derrick to the roof, when suddenly there was a rending noise and the boom broke off.

No one was injured.

JUDGE URGES AUTO JAILINGS

Sullivan Believes Imprisonment Best for Drunken and Reckless Drivers

Judge Charles S. Sullivan of Charlestown Court today threw the weight of his office and influence solidly behind the crusade against drunken and criminally reckless autoists.

JUDGE CHARLES S. SULLIVAN

"A drunken driver should be sent to jail," said Judge Sullivan. "I desire to commend Registrar Frank Goodwin for his campaign against those who make the street unsafe."

His statement follows:

"In the fifteen years of the fatal accidents are due to the disregard of pedestrians in making use of the highways, while in the less densely populated sections the cases causing death is more frequently due to the negligence of the operator.

"There have been so many people seriously injured and deaths resulting that the public conscience is aroused.

"I believe one of the best correctives for the folly of which we speak is the imprisonment of the offender. It should be made next to impossible to secure a reprieve or a drunken operator to be allowed a license to operate automobiles.

"There are circumstances in my judgment when a fine is adequate punishment, as in the case of a man having a family driven and a man under the influence of liquor. A drunken man should be sent to jail; a man with one or two drinks having a large family and responsible position through arrest, is sufficient to punished on a fine when no damage to life or property has been done. The one has a position and has a large family dependent upon him and will not repeat the offense."

FIRM ACCUSES WOMAN CLERK

Miss Rushing Held on Charge of Destroying Motor Concern's Account Books

Charged with destroying on June 23 three written books of account valued at $10 each and the property of the Motors Corporation of New England, No. 104 Massachusetts avenue, Back Bay, Miss Anna S. Rushing, a stylish-dressed woman of twenty-five years, who claims New York as her home, was arraigned in the Municipal Court today.

She pleaded not guilty and her case was continued until July 6.

The complainants against her were Arthur F. Young, manager of the concern, and Timothy F. Brown, a detective.

It is alleged that the destruction of the books followed her discharge as bookkeeper of the concern.

Miss Rushing, who lives at No. 833 Beacon street, Back Bay, denies this and says she was not discharged, but resigned.

Miss Rushing also denied flatly a report that she is the daughter of a wealthy Missouri manufacturers who left her a large sum of money on his death, and that this money is so tied up that she was forced to go to work to earn her own living.

"Not a word of truth in that," said Miss Rushing after having the court. "If my father left any money I never heard of it."

LINERS CRAWL TO PORT IN FOG

Grounding of Elmer E. Gray on Grover's Cliff Only Casualty Reported

Dense fog seriously hampered shipping in Boston harbor today.

Liners, coastwise and overseas, came crawling into port with their engines barely turning over and their whistles and sirens blaring dismally through the mist.

Except for the fishing schooner Elmer E. Gray of Gloucester, which piled high and dry on Grover's Cliff, Winthrop Highlands, and had to be pulled off by the tug Neptune and towed to Fisherman's Pier, South Boston, looking badly, no accidents were reported.

Some fog signals and deferred sailings were rife. The North Land, in from New York, took five hours to work her way cautiously from Sandwich, at the entrance of the canal, to her pier, and the Maine steamers were from half an hour to one hour late in docking.

Quarantine sounded like the Fourth of July Row as fleeting time as a dozen or more craft of all sorts piloted and blared their foghorns to warn all and sundry of their proximity.

The Anchor Line liner Assyria with 240 passengers on board sailed yesterday but anchored at quarantine waiting for the fog to lift. So did the Clyde liner Lake Farthault for Halifax and the Argentine liner Asuncion, the American line freighter Devanaf for Hamburg and the Munaltern, coastwise for Baltimore, and a few more.

Anchored off the lightship until the fog lifted, the Assyria's crew of 240 people, among them the Rast Indian, from Hamburg, the wages from New Orleans, who otherwise rejoice from Norfolk, and a number of fishing schooners.

5,000 WOMEN TO SEE FIGHT

Prominent Society Leaders to Be at Dempsey-Carpentier Ringside

wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy and many others. It is estimated that there will be from 5,000 to 10,000 women present.

For the first time since the battle was arranged Wall street laid bets were on the result. On the floor of the New York Stock Exchange approximately $500,000 was wagered.

One of the most prominent members of the exchange offered $50,000 to $35,000 that Dempsey would win. Another offered $10,000 to $8,000 for a moderate amount. This was quickly snapped up and $50,000 additional was offered on the same odds. There was much more difficulty in securing takers, but the wager was finally placed. Another bet of $10,000 to $8,000 and $5,000 against $4,000 that Dempsey would score a knockout, but was on a round basis.

The stipulation was made that if Carpentier should score a knockout he would count the same as a knockout for Dempsey.

The same broker who made the above wagers placed $5,000 even that Carpentier would not respond to the bell at the beginning of the seventh round.

Pool players, the big Brooklyn stockholders reported $1,000 wagered against $500 that Dempsey would win. One thousand dollars was also reported to have been bet that Carpentier does not last eight rounds. Small bets were placed at odds of 2½ and 3 to 1 against the Frenchman.

"STONE WOMAN," ON TRIAL FOR LIFE, BARES FEAR OF HELL

MADE MAD BY VICTIM, HER PLEA

Mrs. Catherine Kaber Waging Battle to Ban Women From Jury in Case

Cleveland, O., June 29.—Mrs. Catherine Eva Kaber, the "stone woman," described by the prosecution as a "fiend in human form," fears hell.

"As bloodless as a stone" is the common description of this thin, dark woman who sits in the courtroom here on trial for her life. It is charged she fed arsenic to her husband, Daniel Kaber, wealthy publisher, until he was weak to the point of exhaustion and then hired an assassin who stabbed the helpless man twenty-four times.

If the accused showed bravado before the trial, she displays none now, but sounded pathetically human and tried hard during an examination in interview with the International News Service today she cried out:

"Why can't they leave me alone until they have heard my story? He was the fiend. He sucked the life blood and drove me crazy. God knows how much she suffered.

ADMITS FEAR OF HELL.

"Yes, I'm afraid," she added slowly. "I'm afraid of hell beyond and hell on this earth. He made my life a hell."

But the State she will be pictured to the jury as a diabolical murderess—by the defense as a victim of the acts of a man degenerate in body and mind. Pleaded by fear she sought a new "jury out" according to her story, first by consulting fortune tellers and lastly by plotting his death.

Her attorney having failed to bar women from the jury, will now attempt to eliminate them by the exercise of peremptory challenges. If their efforts fail they will make the presence of one or more women on the jury a point for appeal in event of conviction.

DOUBTS JUSTICE OF SEX.

There is a growing prejudice against women jurors in Ohio according to Francis Poulson, one of Mrs. Kaber's attorneys.

"They haven't the experience necessary for jury service," he said. "They are relentless in judging their own sex. Nine out of ten women would favor Mrs. Kaber's freedom even after hearing all the horrible details of her story, they would have no sympathy for Daniel. They would not be able to understand because of their limited experience of life. Men because of their broader experience have more sympathy."

"I know the fiend they paint me, do you think my girl would call me?" the accused woman asks passionately referring to her 17-year-old daughter, Marian, who is imprisoned in the jail, a few yards from the courtroom.

With her 69-year-old grandmother, also under arrest, Marian is charged with complicity in Kaber's murder and on the verdict in the mother's case rests the fate of the girl and the grandmother.

SUIT JOKE, SAYS MRS. SHAPIRO

Mrs. Emery's Counsel in $20,000 Alienation Case Predicts "Surprising Evidence"

"It's all a joke," declares Mrs. Sadie Shapiro of Forestdale street, wife of Abraham Shapiro, Beach street shoe dealer, referring to a $20,000 suit brought by Mrs. Mary Emery for alienation of the affections of her husband, William Emery, now employed as chauffeur by Mrs. Shapiro.

"We will have some surprising evidence to offer when the case comes up for trial," predicts Wilfred B. Keenan, attorney for Mrs. Emery.

"We expect to show that William Emery became friendly with Mrs. Shapiro at a time when he and his wife were employed at the home of a Mrs. Roberts on Dean road, Brookline.

"We will attempt to prove that Emery's infatuation for Mrs. Shapiro became so great that he sought employment in her home, taking his wife with him to work as first maid."

Mrs. Shapiro denies that anything passed between her and Emery other than the usual relations of employer and servant.

"In fact, one reason I like him is because he is always so silent," she declares.

The city was then set on fire and many Greek civilians massacred.

DEMONSTRATES QUITT SLAYING

Court Street Salesman Portrays Shooting in Steinhausen Trial

For the second time since the beginning of the trial of Policeman Bernard Steinhausen, charged with second degree murder in killing Louis Quitt of Medford, the shooting was re-enacted in Suffolk Superior Court today.

With Assistant District Attorney Fred M. J. Sheenan playing the part of the victim, William J. O'Rourke of Hyde Park avenue, Roslindale, salesman in a Court square haberdashery, demonstrated with a pistol how the crime was committed.

O'Rourke, as did all the other witnesses, testified that Quitt's hands were raised and that he made no attempt to strike the policeman.

The witness said he was in front of his place of employment, across the street from where the shooting took place. He said he saw the two men pushing each other and then saw Steinhauser draw a revolver, point it at the ground and fire.

A few seconds later, the witness said, Steinhauser deliberately pointed the weapon at Quitt and pulled the trigger. Under cross-examination he said the men were close together.

Another witness, Patrick H. Supple of Medford, an engineer, testified today that Quitt had his hands in the air when he was fatally shot by Policeman Steinhauser.

Supple, who is employed in Boston, said he was walking down Court street on Saturday morning, April 30, when he heard a report which he thought was an automobile backfire. He turned and saw two men near an automobile truck. The bigger man's back was to him, he testified, and he could not see what the man held in his hand. The smaller man, later identified as Quitt, had his hands in the air.

William Pookatch, a shoe retailer of No. 123 Humboldt avenue, Roxbury, testified that he was badly frightened on hearing the first shot and ran. Under cross-examination he said he saw Quitt "spreading angrily" at Steinhauser. Quitt's hands were up, he said.

Howard D. Wheelock of Roslindale, whose office is at No. 10 State street, testified no blows were struck by Steinhauser or Quitt.

GOODWIN PROBES SUDBURY TRAGEDY

A separate and thorough investigation of the North Sudbury accident in which five men were killed when their auto was struck by a New Haven freight train on the Raymond Crossing was ordered by State Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin. The investigation will be made by Goodwin's inspectors and will be independent of the probes made by the police and the State Department of Public Utilities. The death of the five motorists brought the auto death-list for June up to sixty, already eighteen in excess of last June.

How Hub Men Would Spend $5,000,000

Could you spend $5,000,000 in three weeks?

A Boston American reporter today asked this question of the following men:

State Treasurer James Jackson.
City Treasurer Frank S. Deland.
Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald.

Here is what they said:

STATE TREASURER JACKSON—"It can't be done. The interest on such a sum would be $15,000. It couldn't be spent, in the proper meaning of the word."

Treasurer Jackson added that, like most right thinking people, he would never think of trying to spend the $5,000,000 on himself if he had it.

"I would buy scores of buildings and turn them into charitable institutions for our poor and disabled. I would retain enough for my own moderate needs."

CITY TREASURER DELAND—"I would use the money to relieve distress in the families of Boston boys who served in the war, and keep wounded and disabled veterans in the hospitals."

EX-MAYOR FITZGERALD—"Human wants are so limited it would be impossible for one person to spend that much money within the time. One could invest it in jewels or real estate, of course, but that wouldn't be spending.

"If I had $5,000,000 I would use it to finance or assist New England factories and give the idle work.

"With the money left I would buy food to send to the starving men, women and children of the distressed corners of the earth."

Reporter's "$5,000,000" is Unspent in 3 Weeks

If you had to spend $5,000,000 in three weeks in Boston how would you go about it?

If you had the $5,000,000, could you spend it in three weeks?

Not give it away, mind you, not invest it, but spend it as you went along.

Mrs. Smith Wilkinson, wealthy middle-aged English woman, recently broke all records by actually spending $5,000,000 in Paris in three weeks.

A Boston American reporter sallied out with a mythical $5,000,000 to see if this feat could be reproduced here.

HAD GREAT IDEAS.

He had seen "Brewster's Millions" and similar plays and always had an idea that if given an opportunity he could do much better.

It's a fascinating occupation, spending $5,000,000 which are nonexistent, if you've never tried it.

This reporter, in his imaginary three weeks as a multi-millionaire, entertained a huge party of his friends here.

He dined them and—er, grapefloed them. He bought diamonds and precious stones. He bought automobiles—pleasure cars, runabouts, racers. He purchased whole sections of theatres for performances.

$50,000 HOTEL BILL.

His imaginary party spent three weeks in the costliest hotel in the Back Bay. They had an entire floor. They tipped bellboys and head clerks and waitresses like Western oil kings let loose in New York.

Their suite cost (the reporter inquired prices at the hotel in mind) $50,000 for the three weeks. That included rooms and food. The food included caviar, fruits and vegetables out of season, the most delicious tit-bits from far-off climes to tickle faded palates and arouse the envy of any Oriental gourmand.

The reporter by this time was becoming enthusiastic. He chartered a special train to run his friends down to a beach and back. He hired orchestras and had special performances by theatrical troupes imported from New York, bought clothes lavishly, demanded rare flowers.

$5,500,000 TO SPARE.

At the end of the three weeks he had disposed of exactly $1,500,000 and that included the wages of a huge retinue of servants and tips beyond the dreams of the most optimistic cloakroom girl.

At the end of the imaginary three weeks the reporter admits that spending $5,000,000 in three weeks would be harder than working with a pick and shovel where it's 90 in the shade and there is no shade.

NO COMPROMISE FOR STILLMAN

Wife's Attorney Declares 11th-Hour Agreement Is Out of Question

By International News Service.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 29.—"There is no chance of a compromise, James A. Stillman has his head down and is going straight for the stone wall."

As the hearings in the great Stillman divorce case were about to be reopened here before Referee Gleason this morning, a member of Mrs. Stillman's legal staff made this statement, in answer to reports that an eleventh-hour compromise was in sight.

The multimillionaire ex-banker himself was expected in town to confer late today or some time tomorrow. His side of the case will be completed before the end of the week, it was announced.

"Mr. Stillman, are you the father of Jay Ward Leeds?"

When James A. Stillman takes the stand in his sensational divorce suit hearings, which were resumed here today before Referee Gleason, he will be asked that direct question by attorneys for his wife, Mrs. "Fifi" Potter Stillman.

As the hour drew near for the staging of a new act in the great society drama, it became clear that its features will be an attempt by Mrs. Stillman's counsel to turn the tables completely upon her multimillionaire husband.

They will try to force him to admit under oath the parentage of the little son of Mrs. Florence Helen Leeds, former roof garden "chicken." If he denies it they propose to try to identify him by witnesses as Franklyn Harold Leeds, and to lay bare an amazing story of alleged dual life.

Thirty-eight depositions have been assembled for use in the cross examination of Stillman, it was learned.

The hearing got under way about 11 o'clock. Mrs. Stillman, radiating cheer and confidence, smiled and nodded to friends and newspapermen as she entered the courtroom, where the proceedings were again in secret. She was dressed entirely in black, except for her stockings, which were cream color.

COHAN DEPLORES 'SCALPER' EVIL

Declares Theatres to Attain Success Must Abolish Speculators

Theatre speculators and sidewalk "scalpers" will be in existence until theatres decide to restrict the sale of all tickets to the box office, George M. Cohan, famous actor-manager, declared in Boston today.

Mr. Cohan has been forced to bid the stage farewell, because he is opposed to the policy of the closed shop.

"The theatre can never be a really successful institution until the baneful spectre of the ticket speculator is abolished," he said. "To do this the managers must make a clean sweep and start with the policy that no ticket can be sold except through the box office window.

"Of course this will affect hotel agencies which conduct a legitimate business on a fifty cent premium basis. But if the scalper is to go, the agents will have to go first.

"It will be impossible to stop the scalper from buying tickets in small lots through the box office, but he would soon tire of that system. It would not be profitable.

"The hotel and ticket agency is a useful institution. Many theatre-goers do not buy their tickets in any other way, but, nevertheless, it is the bane of the speculating evil.

"For instance. A play which has proved a success is coming to town. Prior to its arrival the head of the agency contracts for tickets for eight or sixteen weeks, paying twenty-five cent premium on each ticket. He then sells them for an additional twenty-five cents each.

"If it stopped there it would be all right. But it doesn't. The scalper buys the tickets in quantities from the hotel man and the agency sends in orders, padded for twice their original price."

GETS 30-DAY TERM AS CINNAMON THIEF

PEGGY JOYCE'S GEMS FOUND

Jewels Worth $200,000 to Be Held Pending Proof That Duty Was Paid

Chicago, June 29.—Peggy Hopkins Joyce's jewels, which she is said to have smuggled into America from Europe, were found in New York by government agents, according to Williams H. Clark, collector of customs for the port of Chicago.

The jewels, valued at approximately $200,000, will be held until it is determined whether they were properly declared and the duty paid when Peggy brought them into the United States.

When Mrs. Joyce sued for $10,000 a month alimony it was brought out that Joyce had before and since their marriage given his wife jewelry worth more than $2,000,000. The charge was made that duty had not been paid on priceless pearls and diamonds and other jewels. The government started an investigation.

W. F. Willcox, special agent of the Treasury Department for Chicago and John R. Ford, assistant collector of customs, have been in charge of the investigation here.

When Mrs. Joyce returned to New York she was shadowed, and, according to the government agents, the secret hiding place of the jewels was found.

An investigation in Chicago led to the discovery of some correspondence between Peggy and Cartier, the noted Parisian jeweler.

The Treasury Department, it was further stated, has information that three valuable automobiles were brought into the United States without the duty having been paid upon them. And there were, according to government agents, trunks full of gowns of Paris make and hats that cost small fortunes that have never been declared for duty. A list of the jewels is said to include a diamond tiara, two tiaralettes, two pear-shaped diamonds, six watches, a pearl necklace and two or three diamond bracelets.

HAVERHILL SHOE WORKER SUICIDE

High Tension Living Is Cause of More Suicides Among Women, Doctor Says

At least seven women in Metropolitan Boston in the last week have committed suicide or attempted to do so. Why?

Was it the disturbed economic situation, bearing hard upon man, and harder upon the woman, behind the man?

Was it the health of women, overstrained from the stress of modern life?

Was life too drab, and duties too exacting?

Is it a public health problem?—Question put to two physicians—a man and a woman, both public health specialists.

By HAZEL CANNING

"It's a little bit of all these grievous modern conditions," the woman says.

"Nobody knows what makes a person commit suicide. It's not a public health problem," the man, Dr. Merrill E. Champion of the State Department of Health, allowed. The two physicians then discussed the details.

"Now," began Dr. Lily Owen Burbank, "no death, however obscure, can come by suicide, but it is the wholesome interest of society to find the cause and help the condition.

DUE TO LIVING TENSION.

"You know, if my opinion is worth anything, I would say that these recent suicides are partly due to the high tension under which all women are living today.

"This started in the war. Women, before that, many of them, had too few interests; they found interests then; they worked at white heat; they still keep the habit, the emergency passed. Then they break down.

"Just one point more. These women, several of these suicides, were in the forties, and subject to the strain of the forties. Women, from prejudice, physiology, expect to be ill in the forties.

SHOULD USE ENERGY.

They brood when they should turn the energy it takes to brood out into sane work. 'Forget yourself,' is a good motto for us all. 'Forget yourself, and then go on from there.'"

Dr. Champion, again, was the wonderer.

"Nobody knows, in the majority of cases, what it is which turns the ballot the wrong way, with these unfortunates," he explained.

"Suicide always comes in a distorted time, when the mind is unbalanced, temporarily, perhaps, but still unbalanced.

REASONS INADEQUATE.

"Then, again, the reason assigned by such as leave a reason is wholly inadequate to the grave to be taken.

"The dread thing comes upon the poor soul, when a trifle looms large, and reason reels. The excessive strain adds its burden, and then comes the inevitable.

"But the true history of the suicide is still to be written. For women have withstood the terrors of fire and flood, and come through singing, to rush upon great death, for a whim. As I said at first, nobody really knows [illegible]

25,000 COMING FOR Y. D. FETE

Banquets, Boxing, Plymouth Pilgrimage and Parade July 4, Feature of Fete

More than 20,000 New England people, augmented by at least 5,000 from other parts of the country, are expected to attend the first reunion of the veterans of the Yankee Division to be held in this city July 2, 3 and 4.

The program opens Saturday afternoon with an all-star boxing show in Braves field at 2 p. m.

A pilgrimage to Plymouth will feature the activities of the vets on Sunday, July 3.

Assembly for the big parade on Independence Day will be blown at 10 a. m. on Commonwealth avenue.

Welcomes Veterans of Yankee Division

Here is the official welcome of the city of Boston, issued today by Mayor Peters, to veterans of the Yankee Division, who attend the reunion here on July 2, 3 and 4:

"It is my great and proud pleasure to extend to members of the Yankee Division an official welcome to Boston upon their first reunion in the home-departing days at Camp Devens, over two years ago. It is fitting that this famous fighting division, whose personal was made up almost entirely of New England boys, should select as its meeting place, in which to renew friendships and rehearse again the triumphs of Seicheprey, Chemin-des-Dames, the Argone, Chateur-Thierry and 80 Million, the city of Boston, where American history was made.

"Governor Calvin Coolidge, D. Edwards, your beloved and gallant leader, will be here with you, both as a fighting man and commanding general of the military area, in the success of which he so prominently figured. The boys of the 26th Division will come here from Northern New England and Central America, from all New England and most of the other States of the union. Many of them will be accompanied by their relatives, and to all I extend my cordial greetings and sincere good wishes."

ARREST FUGITIVE FROM DEER ISLAND

Old Orchard, Me., June 29.—George Lavigne, alias George Harper, who escaped from Deer Island, March 1, when arrested here today, declared he would never go back to Boston alive.

IRISH TROOPS IN INDIAN MUTINY

Private Daly, Sentenced to Death, Writes Mother of Sacrifice for Erin

Details of the execution of Private James Daly and the imprisonment of sixty of his comrades in the Connaught Rangers, on duty in India, for mutiny against the British government, have reached relatives of Stephen Lally, one of the prisoners, living in Boston.

Lally, who is hardly more than twenty-one years old, and who was wounded seventeen times during the fighting with the Germans in almost every one of the various war fronts, was sentenced to fifteen years imprisonment, and has been taken to England to serve his sentence.

Daly also was wounded while fighting "for the freedom of small nations." He was less than twenty-one years old when shot down by British rifles at Dagshai, Simla Hills Station, India, following a mutiny of the Rangers upon the refusal of their commander to convey their protests against the treatment of their native land to the British government.

Daly joined the Rangers five years ago when but a mere boy and saw service with them on all the fighting fronts. In a letter-card the last he was ever to write his mother—he says:

"My Dearest Mother: I take this opportunity to let you know the dreadful news that I am about to be shot on Tuesday morning, December 2. But what harm? It is all for Ireland. I am not afraid to die; it is only the thinking of you I am with will be happy on earth I shall be happy in Heaven. I am ready to meet my doom.

"The priest is along with me when needed, so you need not worry about me. As I am going to my dearest home, Heaven.

"Out of sixty-two of us I am the only one to be put out of this world. I am ready now to meet it. God bless you all. I hope to see you all some day in Heaven. I hope, dearest mother, you won't be terribly put out, but will keep a stout heart. I know it is hard on you, but what can be done.

"The priest will send my letters home to you. This is the last letter you will get from me."

GROUNDED FISHER FLOATS WITH TIDE

The two-masted fishing schooner Essie E. Gray, one of the Gorton Pew Fisheries Company fleet, which went aground off Winthrop Beach near Crystal Cove Saturday, was floated early today at high tide. She was pulled into action by the tugboat Neptune after an hour's work. The boat, equipped with fish, was then towed to the fish pier.

DAY SALESMAN IS AGENT OF MARINES

A well-dressed young man, alleged to be posing as a representative of the Marine Corps is being sought by police, who claim he is selling a bogus history of the corps to women and girls.

—Fresh From Paris—

PARIS, France.

MIDNIGHT blue serge makes its appearance in a trotteur built along the straight lines that are double popular this Summer, because, besides being smart, they are so generally becoming. And the omnipresent touch of gray is in the crepe cuffs and the long fringe that hushes the girdle. A charming detail is the introduction of buttons covered with dark blue silk at the waist line, to simulate embroidered flowers. The perfectly plain black Milan sailor, banded in gray crepe, also is very much of the moment.

A PARTICULARLY graceful use of side drapery and the long hanging end is featured in a black taffeta frock seen at the tea hour at the Cafe de Madrid. A band of ruffling in self material trims the short sleeves and the natural waist line, and also is used in the scroll design at the front of the full gathered skirt. Worn with this is a hat of white crepe, trimmed with a mustard yellow water lily.

Harding Marking Time Pending Anglo-Jap Conference, Hapgood Says

Washington, June 29.—Constant inquiry is made about the President's reasons for not explaining his plans for co-operation with Europe.

Those questions will be answered when the question of normalcy has been thoroughly considered and gotten out of the way.

The reason for President's silence is that he is proceeding on a step-by-step basis and the next move is Britain's, as a matter of actual fact, co-operation with Europe means in the first instance co-operation with Great Britain. If the attempt to bring about such co-operation succeeds any concrete help will be immediately affected, but the plan is being worked out between the two English-speaking countries.

AWAIT TREATY'S FATE.

It will be remembered by some that several weeks ago I wrote two articles on the extensive hearings of the imperial conference now going on in London. I strongly indicated then any possibility of success in formulating new relations between Great Britain and the continent hinged on the abandonment of the treaty between Great Britain and Japan.

Well, the fate of the treaty is today the key to what is happening in the State Department. The British have indicated that they are willing to go only a fifty-fifty basis with us in naval power. To be sure, Lloyd George has dropped remarks taking away somewhat from that willingness, but on the whole it seems to express the present British attitude.

But our government has no intention of making any reply to Great Britain until it knows whether or not Britain and Japan are allies. The naval strength that we shall claim will be much greater if Japan and Britain are allies than if they are not.

WAR TAUGHT LESSON.

The talked-about alliance, if the treaty is renewed, making an exception in case the United States should be a belligerent, does not meet the objection of the administration. One experience during the great war taught us that sea power and the use of it are sure to be subject of controversy in any future war.

In the last war the United States while was a neutral suffered from Great Britains orders in council; in other words from her interfering with rights as we saw them the United States was a neutral she was interfered with, not only in her trade with Germany but in her trade with neutrals.

Hence, if there were a war between the United States and Japan, even if Britain were neutral, her attitude toward questions arising at sea would be important.

MUST ABANDON PACT.

"There is no solution, therefore, of the situation, as I see it, unless Britain ends it, except the abandonment of the treaty between great Britain and Japan.

This, I think, will answer the question of my friend Hamilton Holt and others about why the administration does not put forward a plan. It has chosen the method of first finding out, and it is now waiting. The British government fully understands the situation.

If the Japanese treaty is not renewed the next step will be to arrange the relative programs of the three naval powers. Negotiations can be begun as soon as the treaty matter is out of the way, but the essential points will be agreed upon by the three powers, or at least by Great Britain and this country, before there is any public conference.

VIEW TRADE AS KEY.

Once the naval question is arranged the rest of the President's program will be next in order of business. This Administration looks upon commerce as the key to modern international politics. Trade is to rule and naval strength will therefore be followed by agreements regarding the open door in China, coaling stations, all stations, access to all in such fields as the open door covered one in Northwest Canada, and all outstanding commercial questions.

It is believed by those guiding the thought of the present administration that if a satisfactory arrangement is reached along these lines by the three naval powers there will be no difficulty with regard to France, Germany or any other power as the arrangements will be all on the basis of equal rights.

Also it is believed that if the economic co-operation is worked out the methods of settling other questions will follow as a natural corollary.

That is what President Harding means by an association of nations. That is why the next move cannot be his.

TO PASS ON CASH GIFTS TO POLICE

The question of whether a Boston police officer can accept gifts of money without the consent of the police commissioner is to be decided once and for all by a board of inquiry. The string follows the information that a Back Bay hotel man presented a number of $5 gold pieces last Christmas to a lieutenant and several sergeants of one of the station houses. The gold was later returned and now comes the discussion as to whether or not such gratuities will be permitted in the future.

TWO BURNED IN YACHT EXPLOSION

Joseph L. and James L. Livvie are at the Massachusetts General Hospital, being treated for severe burns suffered in an explosion on a yacht owned by the Armour family of Chicago. The explosion occurred when the yacht was on a trip from New York to Bar Harbor and the vessel put in at New Bedford, from which place the men were rushed to the Boston hospital.

JULIA SANDERSON TO WED THIRD HUSBAND

Julia Sanderson, well-known Boston stage favorite, is to make her third matrimonial debut, it is whispered in New York. Her latest husband is to be Clyde K. Carleton, a New Yorker, who, like the fair Julia, has failed to live before the matrimonial altar.

If gossip is right Carleton has just been divorced from Edith Day, star in "Irene," following the charge that he was "the other" woman in a spectacular society suit. He will not admit his engagement to Miss Sanderson.

"I hope it is true," Mr. Carleton says. "Fact is, she is wearing a handsome new diamond engagement ring. You can make your guess where it came from."

GRAFT EXPOSED IN RED CROSS

official at the "star chamber session" in the Hotel Regina, know this.

CRITICIZED ASSISTANTS.

He criticised Major Solomon and Captain Lodwin, his assistants, for their connection with the scheme to transport goods for French and American speculators under the seal of Red Cross.

It was brought out at the Hotel Regina conference that Captain Lodwig, assistant in charge of the Red Cross Bureau of Requirements at Paris, sent a blunt order to Major Bruce at St. Nazaire to sign one of three questionable "orders of transport" for Alexander W. Willoughby, who privately bought a large consignment of Red Cross groceries and merchandise.

The New York American is in possession of records which show that sausages bought from the Red Cross for five francs and thirty centimes per kilo were sold by the speculators for as much as twenty-five francs. This 400 per cent. profit on a safe speculation was often duplicated.

An investigation was started, but it was cut short by the exercise of influence.

On July 14, 1919, three men who had been held by the French Government for their share in the transactions were released.

Colonel Nygette informed the division of criminal investigation that "no good could come from prosecuting three men."

"It would create too big a scandal in the United States" he explained.

Thus did the Red Cross head in France temporarily spike the guns of criticism by a discreet silence.

THIS world of ours is a workshop in which each of us is to earn our bread.

Some people seem to think it is a great drawing room where activity has no place. Were it that, life would soon cease.

True, we have our beauty spots, especially here in New England, where Nature has been lavish with her gifts.

We will never put our advertising sign where it will detract from the beauty of Nature, and we have yet to find a man who asked for a sign in such a place.

The outdoor advertising plant owner respects the sensibilities of common sense people and never offends good taste either in the text or form or location of his advertisers. Not only that, but we have hung many a beautiful picture over an ugly spot that would offend the eye. Public opinion is a wonderful censor and it has written O. EXPLORER HELD UP BY FOG

MacMillan Still at Plymouth; Will Sail for Arctic Regions Last of Week

Explorer Donald B. MacMillan and his schooner Bowdoin, on which he is soon to sail for the Arctic regions, are in Plymouth today. He was expected to arrive today at T wharf, but owing to the heavy fog was obliged to extend his stay at the south shore.

On his arrival in Boston he will take on supplies for a two years' cruise into the frozen North, and on Friday or Saturday will sail for Wiscasset, Me. From that port Explorer MacMillan expects to start July 26 for Baffin Land.

The party will attempt to make a passage through Fury and Hecla Straits, a region no white man has visited for more than a century.

MacMillan proposes to explore 1,000 miles of coast line, new lands on the maps, and then will penetrate the interior of Baffin Land, of which there are 150,000 miles.

"No white man has ever been there," said the Arctic explorer today. "Its possibilities of discovery are unlimited. If we can put it on the map and its vast area is the known land of the world our trip will be worth while.

E. P. BUTLER TELLS OF SPLENDID RESULTS

East Boston Man Says Tanlac Has Simply Been Wonderful in His Wife's Case. Was in Bad Health Two Years.

"I am just so glad to see how perfectly my wife's health is being restored that I feel like telling everybody about Tanlac," said Edward P. Butler, 138 Putnam St., East Boston, government employee, Navy Department, a few days ago.

"For the past two years Mrs. Butler has been in a very nervous run-down condition. She complained of a heavy pain in the head, in the pit of her stomach and suffered so from indigestion that she actually dreaded to eat. She was extremely nervous and restless, could scarcely sleep at all nights, and was tired and worn-out all the time. Her kidneys worried her a lot, too, and she had the worst sort of pains in the small of her back. She was bothered a great deal from the formation of gas on her stomach, which caused such a bloated, stuffed up feeling she could hardly breathe.

"After finishing her first bottle of Tanlac however, the spell of feeling better. She has taken three bottles now and is so much improved in every way that I don't want her to miss a single dose and have just bought her two more bottles. She is eating heartily of fat meats and other things she dared not touch before. Her nerves are much better, she sleeps better, and does not complain of feeling tired and worn out like she did. Her kidneys and back don't trouble her so much and she is looking better than she has in a long time. Tanlac is bringing about a change in her entire condition, and I have become as anxious to see it in the only thing that has ever done her any real good and I can't praise it enough for what it has already accomplished for her."

Tanlac is distributed by International Prop., Inc., and sold in Boston by all Liggett's drug stores.—Advertisement.

EVERYONE NOW WRITING TITLES

Songs of World Test Almost One-Third Completed With Picture 19 Today

Picture No. 19!
Song Title Test almost one-third completed!
Forty-one pictures to come!
Boston and all New England are "writing titles." You can join by writing a title for Test Picture No. 19. The eighteen pictures which preceded it will be re-printed next week.

The Boston American's $6,000 Songs of the World Test consistes of 60 Pictures, printed in this newspaper without their titles. Titles for the pictures already have been selected. They will be printed, among other titles, in lists of titles printed with the Test Pictures. The correct title of No. 19, today's picture, is in today's List of Titles. This will be the practice every day throughout the Test.

HOLD LISTS TILL END.

Test Pictures and titles must not be sent in before the end of the Test. Find the title for each picture, in the List of Titles appearing with it, and write it carefully on the title line immediately below the picture. One or more titles in the List may APPEAR to fit the picture. The Correct Title, however, not only fits it, but fits it BETTER than any other title in the List.

You can take part in the Song Title simply by starting today to write titles. No enrollment is necessary. Back numbers of the paper are not to be had from this office, but some day next week the Boston American will print all the Back Pictures and the Lists of Titles which go with them. To make certain of that one printing of Back Pictures it is advisable to place an advance order with the newsdealer. The "all sold out" sign will be posted early. While you are about it, tell Mr. Newsdealer you will want the Boston American regularly for the remainder of the Test. Please do not ask the Test Editor for back numbers of the paper. They are not to be had if your newsdealer is without them.

$6,000 AWARD LIST.

At the close of the Test, participants will forward parcels composed of 60 Test Pictures to this office, the titles they have selected will be compared with the titles on the Official List and the Boston American will pay 750 awards, in cash, to those who have sent in the largest numbers of Correct Titles. The awards will be as follows:

ONE FIRST AWARD	$1,000
ONE SECOND AWARD	1,000
ONE THIRD AWARD	750
ONE FOURTH AWARD	500
ONE FIFTH AWARD	400
ONE SIXTH AWARD	300
ONE SEVENTH AWARD	200
ONE EIGHTH AWARD	150
ONE NINTH AWARD	100
ONE TENTH AWARD	50
700 AWARDS OF $10 EACH	7,000
110 AWARDS OF $5 EACH	550
TOTALS	$6,000

These are generous word awards, they are not for "wishers."

It can be taken for granted that those who carry away the first ten awards have earned themselves. They will understand the titles which are printed. The List of Titles, remember, is as much a part of the Test as the picture. Winners in the recent $4,000 Movie Play Title Test made several visits to the Public Library before they felt certain of the titles they selected.

$3 A REAL TEST.

Many, perhaps most, of the titles can be located in a minute or two. Others will present "problems." It is for each participant to handle his own problems. This is a Test. The artist has no intention to make it so easy that every participant will write sixty Correct Titles. Indeed, not! On the other hand, every one of the 750 awards will be paid even though the highest number of correct titles submitted should be under forty.

If you like a contest of this description, the gates are wide open to you. Come in! The only reason for the Test is to furnish entertainment. There are only 750 awards and only two of the $1,000 variety. Either of these latter is yours if you earn it, wherever you reside.

Test Pictures will be printed only on week-days and exclusively in the Boston American. If the Rules of the Test do not give all the information you need, the Test Editor is always glad to reply to letters. Please enclose a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

NORTH SEA VETS TO GIVE STATE FLAG

At the State House today the North Sea Mine Force Association will present to the Commonwealth three flags which flew at the masthead of a similar number of ships which during the World War laid mines in the North Sea.

The ships in question, known as the Yankee Mine-Laying Squadron and manned mostly by men from Massachusetts, were the San Francisco, the Shawmut and the Aroostook. During their work covering a period of fourteen months they laid 24,000 mines. The squadron was in charge of Captain Reginald R. Belknap, who is honorary president of the association. The president is Richard C. Parker of Boston.

DEMAND CRUDE OIL TARIFF

Pennsylvania Producers Declare They Are Being Ruined by Cheap Foreign Grades

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 29.—Independent Pennsylvania oil producers, facing heavy loss as a result of another cut of 25 cents a barrel in Pennsylvania and West Virginia grades of crude oil, have appealed to Senators Penrose and Knox for relief in the State for aid in the way of tariff on imported crude oils, particularly from the Mexican and South American fields.

Competition of the cheap Mexican oils has driven Pennsylvania crude steadily downward until the last straw was reached yesterday and financial disaster threatened the producers.

"American oil production will be ruined if relief is not quickly afforded," said the telegram.

Harding May Veto Small Army Bill

Washington, June 29.—Reports that President Harding may veto the army bill recently passed by the Senate and House, which cut the size of the army from 220,000 men to 150,000 men, became current when a conference was held at the White House between President Harding, Senator Borah, the disarament champion, Floor Leader Mondell, Speaker Gillett, Secretary of War Weeks and Representative Green of Vermont, one of the ranking members of the House Military Affairs Committee.

SEEK WIFE WITH TATTOOED KNEE

Bluebird and Rose Design on Limb Clew to Woman Who Eloped With Stepson

Chicago, June 29.—Chicago detectives are searching for a woman with a blue bird and rose tattooed on her knee.

She is Mrs. Laura Birmingham of Toledo, O., who, her husband says, eloped with his son by a previous marriage.

Mark Birmingham wired police here to find his wife.

"She usually wears her stockings rolled down, so you may find her if you station detectives at street car intersections. She has a rose and bluebird tattooed on her knee," were Mark's instructions.

Debts of France Would Fill 150,000 Freight Cars

Paris, June 29.—The clearest idea of the total amount of France's debts is given in La Liberte. The figures are as follows:

"Three hundred billions of francs is the amount of France's debt, according to the budget reporter, Henry Cheron.

"Three hundred billion francs in silver would weigh one and a half million tons, which represents 150,000 railroad trucks loaded with ten tons each, or 2,142 trains of seventy cars each.

"These trains with their engines and tenders, placed one behind the other would fill 1,140 kilometers of railroad, or more than the length of France from the northern port of Calais to the uttermost southern port of Marseilles, passing through Paris.

"Supposing that the sum of three hundred billions was in paper money.

"As ten one thousand franc notes make a pile eight-tenths of one millimeter in thickness the three hundred billions would make a stack of bills sixteen and one-half miles high."

La Touraine TEA

As Good As La Touraine Coffee

"When finally, after hundreds of experiments we succeeded in producing a tea which we thought worthy of the name La Touraine, we put it to an unusual test.

"All the brands of tea on the market were brought in and brewed along with La Touraine Tea. Then we called in a number of nationally famous tea experts, not in the Quinby Company, and asked each one to choose the tea he thought best. Everyone of them chose La Touraine. That is why I am so sure you will use La Touraine Tea permanently if you will just try it once!"

JOHNSON MUST STAY IN JAIL

Attorney-General Refuses to Shorten Jack's Term So He Can See Big Fight

Washington, June 29.—Jack Johnson will not be "among those present" when Dempsey and Carpentier battle for the pugilistic crown that was once his.

Attorney General Daugherty announced today that he had finally decided not to shorten Johnson's term at Leavenworth so that he might see the fight at Jersey City Saturday.

"I am not going to do it, despite the fact that Johnson has been a model prisoner," said Mr. Daugherty. "The crime of which he was convicted is too repugnant to the American people. Therefore, he will have to stay in prison until his term expires on July 7."

In view of the fact that Mr. Daugherty strongly indicated last week that he would allow Johnson to see the fight, his announcement caused somewhat of a surprise. Asked if his later decision was the result of protests, he replied:

"None have reached me."

The Attorney-General also set at rest rumors that he himself would see the battle.

"I feel I ought to respect the opinion of that class of people who have raised so much opposition to the bout," he said. "I am their Attorney-General, as well as a Federal officeholder, and for that reason I don't believe it would be proper for me to attend."

"CONNIE'S" COCKTAIL SHAKER IN TAX CASE

New York, June 29.—Charged with failure to turn over to Uncle Sam the luxury tax on a silver cocktail shaker purchased for $129 by Constance Talmadge, movie star, and a suitcase bought by Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Martin & Martin, one of the most exclusive firms on Fifth avenue, is under indictment today, together with Herbert Martin, a member of the corporation.

Martin pleaded not guilty and was held for bearing July 7 in $2,000 bail.

According to Assistant United States Attorney Mattuck, the company made a practice of making out two sales slips for certain purchases. Thus, when Miss Talmadge bought her silver cocktail shaker for $129, the tax on which would have been $6.50, the purchase slip recorded it as sold the government to have shown the purchase of a "saddle, harness and spurs," on which there is no tax.

Mrs. Vanderbilt's suitcase, it is charged, was listed as some other article not subject to tax.

ALDERMEN COME TO BLOWS IN NEW YORK

New York, June 29.—"Oh, you gimme a pain in the neck," said Vice-President Kennealy of the Board of Aldermen, addressing Alderman Bruce Falconer, who was criticising one of his rulings at a stormy session of the board.

"I'll give you a pain in the eye," shouted Falconer, and shot a swinging right on the other's chin. Kennealy staggered, rallied and landed a smashing left on Falconer's mouth. Falconer fell under the desk.

The sergeant-at-arms jumped in and separated the men. Both were eager to continue, but friends led them away.

LADY RANDOLPH CHURCHILL DEAD

Mother of Secretary for Colonies Was Miss Jennie Jerome of New York

London, June 29.—Lady Randolph Spencer Churchill, an American woman died at her London home today as the result of an infection arising from an amputated foot. Lady Churchill recently suffered a fall in which her left foot was hurt. An operation was performed, but blood poisoning developed.

Lady Churchill was the mother of Winston Spencer Churchill, secretary of State for the Colonies in the British cabinet. Before her marriage to Lord Churchill in 1874, she was Miss Jennie Jerome, daughter of Leonard Jerome of New York. Her first husband died in 1895 and she then married George Cornwallis-West, whom she divorced in 1913.

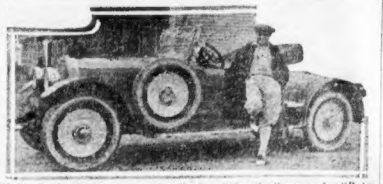
Motion Picture News

By FRIEDA DAVIS.



Wallie Reid, off for a game of golf after "shooting" scenes for "Peter Ibbetson," stops outside the studio long enough to pose with his new McFarlan roadster. Is it a good car? Look at his smile!

WE WERE going to be very glad when the big fight was over, and no one could ask "what all the shootin' was for." It's impossible to pick up a newspaper today and not see quantities of pictures of the two fighters with endless stories of their methods and chances of winning.

But now that we hear what the movie stars have to say on the subject, why then it's something else again. It's been said that the victor stands an excellent chance of being shown a long-term contract with a large salary and being asked to sign on the dotted line.

As a matter of fact the greasepaint and Kleig lights wouldn't be strange to either Dempsey or Carpentier, for each has made pictures on the West coast. Carpentier, it is said, will turn all his attention to music after July 2. Dempsey's plans don't reach beyond that date.

Here's what some of the movie stars have to say about the bout:

ANTONIO MORENO—Carpentier would make a wonderful bull-fighter, but Jack isn't a bull by a long shot. He's a clever boy. Yet there's something about that Frenchman—I'm giving no odds.

MABEL NORMAND—Carpentier, of course. What's a few pounds added heavier when a fellow can go more than a hundred reels with Heavyweight champion Arbuckle?

LOUISE FAZENDA—Jack Dempsey will win. They say the Frenchman is fast on his feet, but he can't get far on account of the rope.

BETTY COMPSON—Now as a leading man, I'd prefer—but it isn't a beauty contest, is it?

BESSIE LOVE—Leave it to Georges!

JAMES KIRKWOOD—I think Dempsey will take the laurels [illegible] I certainly have a bit of regard for the speed of the Frenchman.

BETTY BLYTHE—Every woman favors the knight as against the caveman. I shall play the Ace.

ROSCOE ARBUCKLE—Always bet on the heaviest man, sir. Matter of loyalty with me, sir. My money is on Dempsey.

PEARL PRODUCTIONS BUSY.

ASSOCIATED FIRST NATIONAL comes to the bat with a new producing unit, the John M. Stahl Productions, presented by Louis B. Mayer. Not only has this company come to the fore with promise of great pictures, but it already has one reader for cheering, "Retribution."

For this initial offering the Stahl Co. spent one month in selecting the cast. As a result they managed to gather a decidedly respectable array of players, Heading the cast are Lewis Stone, Barbara Castleton, William Desmond, Richard Headrick, Adele Farrington and Winter Hall. Ernest Palmer, who had charge of the camera work for "The Miracle Man," and other Betty Compson features, has done excellent work with the photography, according to the announcement. John M. Stahl directed.

NORMA TALMADGE BUSY, TOO.

FEARING that Norma Talmadge hadn't enough to do starring in her own productions, her personal representative, Beulah Livingston, has gone to Europe to arrange for "The Life Story of the Talmadges" to run as a serial in 20 installments. The Talmadges are very popular abroad, and several pictorial magazines of England, France and Italy have been bargaining for the story.

Miss Talmadge has also agreed to write a series of Daily Talks to Girls to be syndicated through the Overseas Feature Service. These will be published in book form later. Furthermore Miss Talmadge has accepted the invitation to sit for her portrait to be painted by Joseph Cummings Chase.

The next Norma Talmadge feature will be "The Sign on the Door," adapted from the stage play by Channing Pollock. Lew Cody and Charles Richman play the leading roles opposite Miss Talmadge. Herbert Brennan directed the film and Mary Murillo wrote the continuity.

BACK TO THE WATER STUFF.

MARIE PREVOST finds that wearing in the "Urahman" is not so very different from being a Mack Sennett bathing beauty. She signed up with Universal to star in "The Butterfly." She was looking over the scenario with King Baggot, her director, and noticed the number of changes of costumes she was scheduled for. Among them a bathing suit figured prominently.

When she came to the twenty-fourth change, she put down the manuscript.

"Who wrote this story?" she demanded, "Lucifer?"

WILL DEDICATE SWIMMING POOL.

BUT her aquatic adventures don't end there, by any means. Harry Carey, another Universal star, has just had a large swimming pool built at his ranch outside Los Angeles, and he insists that Miss Prevost take the first plunge in it.

"And I vowed never to go near the water again," she wailed.

"THREE LIVE GHOSTS" FOR SCREEN.

GEORGE FITZMAURICE and his wife, Ouida Bergere, will find their work all cut out for them when they reach the Lasky Studios in London where they will work for the next twelve months.

They will leave New York on July 27 and will go straight to England. Mr. Fitzmaurice has finished the filming of "Experience" and is busy editing and cutting it with the help of Miss Bergere, who wrote the continuity. They will start work on the film adaptation of "Three Live Ghosts," which was seen here recently at the Plymouth Theatre, with an all-English company.

CAMERA CLICKS.

MARY MILES MINTER has loaned her Los Angeles home to charity. That is, she has loaned it to the Ambulance League of California to be used by their "location" bureau. The league will lease it to movie companies for "sets" and "exteriors." The proceeds will be given to charity.

PRISCILLA BONNER was married the other day to Commander Allen Wynne, formerly of the Polish and French Allied Air Service. Commander Wynne is the author of "The Skyway Man."

BAYARD VEILLER, the playwright, proves that his was no idle boast when he said that there was no reason why he couldn't become a good movie director. His first production for Metro, "They Are Not All Villains," starring Viola Dana, was such a success that he has been asked to direct Bert Lytell in his next feature, "Lady Fingers."

VITAGRAPH has raised Edward Jose's position as director to director-of-supervising. He has started work on "The Prodigal Judge," starring Jean Paige. This picture will be distributed as a "Jose Special."

BARNEY UNDER ATWOOD'S CARE

Woburn Doctor Serving Life Term Attends Convalescing Slayer of Policeman

Herman L. Barney, who is serving twenty years in Charlestown State Prison for the slaying of Patrolman Charles E. Delninger, is making a satisfactory recovery after an operation for gallstones.

He is being attended by Dr. Eldridge D. Atwood, sole survivor of the "Triangle Tragedy" of 1916.

Atwood, a young Woburn osteopath, is serving life for the murder of Dr. Wilfred E. Harris, former head of the Massachusetts College of Osteopathy.

The actual operation was performed by Dr. McLaughlin, prison physician, and Dr. Cunningham of Boston. It allowed that the chief of the auto bandits had not been exaggerating in his stories of ill health.

Dr. Atwood, who appears in the role of Barney's good angel in this situation, has been a model prisoner and an influence for good since his commitment, according to prison officials.

Some months ago an appeal was made to the Governor's Council to pardon him. The move failed.

Dr. Atwood shot and killed Dr. Harris, a much older osteopath, in the Hotel Westminster.

The shooting followed discovery by Atwood, it is alleged, that Harris had ruined the life of Dr. Celia Paine Adams, a young woman practitioner of osteopathy with whom Atwood was in love.

HARVEY TO URGE YAP SOLUTION

Ambassador to Present Views of Administration on Mandates This Week

Washington, D. C., June 29.—A solution not only of the Yap question, but also of the problem in Mesopotamia, in which the United States has scarcely less interest, will be sought at the forthcoming meeting of the supreme council. It was learned here today. Unless the date is again changed, the allied premiers will meet the latter part of this week.

Ambassador Harvey is expected to request President Harding at the conference and will have full authority to present the views of the administration when the question of mandates comes up for discussion.

On such purely European matters as the Silesian boundary dispute he will participate merely as an observer.

For Lloyd George the Mesopotamian problem has a domestic as well as an international angle. Since the British took Mesopotamia under the decisions of the supreme council at San Remo in April, 1920, there has been considerable opposition in Great Britain to retention of the territory.

This is based on a unwillingness to expend the money necessary to maintain the British organization and to conquer the warlike Arab tribes.

Liquor Violator Fined

Harry Goldstein, proprietor of a store at No. 152 Putnam street, East Boston, was fined $100 in East Boston Court today for illegally selling liquor and keeping and exposing it for sale. He appealed. His son, Benjamin, was fined $50 for assisting in the alleged sale.

URGES FLAGMEN AT EASTHAMPTON

Declaring that too much economy will endanger the lives of the people, Town Counsel N. Roslyn Hitchcock today protested against the plan of the Boston & Maine Railroad to discontinue flagmen at the Payson avenue grade crossing in Easthampton. Thornton Alexander of the railroad told the Public Utilities Department that the plan would save the company 4,699 a year, but Hitchcock protested that the crossing was a danger spot before the road consented to station permanent flagmen. Thornton said the road would order all trains to a stop before passing the crossing.

It'll Be Easy to Shout '30 Love' Now That the One-Piece Tennis Suit Is Here

If Looks Could Win the Fight!

HANDSOME IS AS HANDSOME DOES! But will the good-looking Frenchman "do" anything next Saturday except kiss the canvas? The experts say no, but most of the women who have been following the fight "dope" can see nothing but Georges as Dempsey's victor. Certainly, the fight would be over before it started if it was determined by looks. Perhaps the best caption would have been: "When Brain Meets Brawn." (K. & H., W. W.)

SPORTY! This smart little Summer hat is one of the latest models and is bound to be popular. The tam has a taffeta crown embroidered with straw, with a pliable brim of the same material. It has a rak'ish chicness. (W W.)

FREE AND HAPPY! Lucy Rosati, 15-year-old Chicago Heights girl, shot a man to death the other day. She was placed on trial and after she had told her story to the jury, these twelve gallants promptly found her not guilty under the unwritten law. (Int.)

PAPOOSE GOLF! The latest fad among the fair golfers of California is carting their babies and pets about the course with them in their golf bags. This, they say, combines sports with home duties. (K. & H.)

SAILING UP! This graceful jump was made by Miss Grace Shuttleworth at the exclusive Huntington Horse Show on the lawn of the Huntington Bay Club, Long Island. The animal is Willisden Rosette, a prize winner. (W. W.)

GAME GIRLS! Although the Cecil Ladies' Rowing Club of Clapton, England, put up a game fight against a scratch eight composed of men, they were defeated by only half a length. (U. & U.)

ORANGE BLOSSOMS. Mrs. Bernard Ryan (Harriet Fitts), who became the bride of a war hero. Now on her honeymoon. (Central.)

GET READY, FELLAS! Just before the big hydrant bath at Solari square, North End. Every sport should start with a little chat and here we have Fire Chief Peter E. Walsh telling 'em what's what. Beside him is Deputy Tabor.

FAST SERVERS! Here is one reason why tennis is so popular in Chicago. So many of the fair bathers wanted to try the raquet game after a soothing dip in the lake that a fashionable hotel had a net installed. Miss Charlotte Rentz (top) and Miss Jean Pomeroy in a lively game. (Int.)

"HOW!" said the Mayor. "How!" said the Indians. Then they passed Hisonner the war club. John P. Ranco (left) and Newell H. Thome, Penobscot Indians from Oldtown, Me. Too wet to sleep on Common last night.

FEAR! Mrs. Lawrence Kubal, who betrayed her husband into the hands of the police as the slayer of Mrs. Minnie A. Bartlett, through fear of meeting a like fate, and her children. She may get $1,000 reward. (U. & U.)

TIME FLIES! Who remembers when the frog pond washed up in front of the State House? Guess again. Nobody did. Another clever trick photo by H. A. Warren, Woburn.

WOOF! WOOF! (Canine translation:) Well, let's get goin', you blighters. It's jolly well time we scored. Hive got 'alf a mind to go out and bite one of the opposing players. H. M. S. Victoria mascot watching football game. (U. & U.)

PAGE THE CENSOR! S'no use, though, 'cause these happy little mermaids are censorless, even though they are frolicing their heels right in New York. Truth to tell, they didn't dare go near the famed Coney Island with these scanty sea suits, so they hied themselves to Manhattan Beach, where it is very private. Apparently Coney is more puritanical than our own Nantasket, for the comfortable and attractive one-piece suit is no longer a novelty at the local resort. The French have an apt epigram: Honi soit qui mal y pense. (Evil to him who evil thinks.) (U. & U.)

DO YOU BELIEVE IN SIGNS? The sign of the dollar mark looked pretty good to the war veterans of New Jersey when they received their bonus. Photo shows Governor Edward I. Edwards signing twenty bonds at one time with this new invention. (U. &U.)

HAT$! HAT$! HAT$! How would you like to buy a "Three Million Dollar Hat" for $7.50? However, you have to be a Radcliffe girl to get one. The hat sale is part of the $3,000,000 endowment drive of the college. Miss Winifred Arrington, '20, is demonstrating how good looking the hats are. Miss Arrington, obviously, does not need any demonstrating. (W. W.)

WHO ARE THEY? You've wrong. They are not the famous American comedians, but two French actors who impersonated Fatty Arbuckle and Charlie Chaplin at the recent Parisian garden party in aid of the old French clown of the stage. (W. W.)

TO ABOLISH 'DRY' SUPERVISORS

Enforcement to Be Centred in State Directors by Administration Plan

By International News Service.

Washington, June 29.—The administration's plan for a sweeping reorganization of the federal prohibition system is to abolish the superating enforcement agent who now has charge of two or three States, and to centre prohibition enforcement in each State entirely in the hands of its prohibition director.

The powers of each of the forty-eight State prohibition directors are to be so enlarged that he will not only have complete supervision over the detection and prosecution of the federal "dry" laws but of the federal anti-dry act within borders of his State.

This was disclosed today to the Senate Finance and House Ways and Means committees when the administration's plans for a general shake-up of the Federal prohibition enforcement organization was submitted to them following conferences between Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, Commissioner of Internal Revenue Blair and of National Prohibition Enforcement Commissioner Haynes.

The plan involves the creation of many new Federal jobs and the expenditure of hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Under the new system the payroll alone of the Pennsylvania Federal prohibition director and his subordinates will total $282,300 annually.

What is true of Pennsylvania under the new system is applicable to other largely populated States like Massachusetts.

He told the police that he fell from the barge and struck his head, stunning himself.

E. K. Lincoln and Seena Owen in a scene from "The Woman God Changed," now being shown at Gordon's Scollay Square Olympia Theatre.

Power, beauty, pathos and charm are all contained in the Cosmopolitan production, "The Woman God Changed." The excellent story by Dunn Byrne, which appeared in Hearst's Magazine, has been transformed under the able direction of Robert G. Vignola into a photoplay of exceptional interest in every way.

Doty Hobart, who wrote the scenario of "The Woman God Changed," has produced in this picture a masterpiece of screen production. It is shown at Gordon's Scollay Square.

Seena Owen and E. K. Lincoln, who play the leading parts in "The Woman God Changed," that of Anna Lindquist, the culprit, and that of Officer McCarthy, her custodian, who learns to love her, have mastered their roles in perfection.

Seldom has such powerful acting been seen on the screen. Others in the cast are Lillian Walker, Henry Bodley, Brian Darley, Paul Nicholson, M. Cooper Cliffe, Templar Saxe and Joseph Smiley.

BANKERS CHEER 'POP' TODDLING

Cambridge Man Hero at Windup of National Shawmut's June Party

New York, June 29.—At the age of seventy-six years, Otis S. Brown, president of the Lechmere National Bank, of Cambridge, with his daughter-in-law as partner, gave an exhibition of modern dancing that brought applause at the hop which brought to a close the three-day June party of more than 500 New England bankers and their ladies.

"Pop" Brown, as he is familiarly known, executed all the latest steps with a grace and skill that astonished the gathering. He danced the "grizzly," the "fox trot" and he "toddled" with the pep of a college student.

It was a sticky night and he had been merry-making since early morning, playing in a golf tournament among other diversions, but that did not bother him.

The last day was crowded with festivities. The junketers were carried in sight-seeing busses to the Westchester-Biltmore Country Club at Rye, N. Y., where luncheon was served. A golf tournament followed. The so-called "big ten" group most frequently snapped and sketched by photographers and artists for the newspapers were Vice-Presidents Frank A. Newell and Addison L. Winship of the Shawmut Bank; Irving W. Cook, president of the First National Bank of New Bedford; Charles H. Hatfield, president of the First National Bank of West Newton; Charles G. Allen, vice-president of the Portland National Bank of Portland; William R. Porter, cashier of the Cheshire National Bank of Keene, N. H.; John W. B. Brand, treasurer of the Springfield Institution for Savings, and E. S. Fillmore, assistant cashier of the National Shawmut Bank.

SALES TAX URGED BY SHEPARD, JR.

Simple and Logical System of Eliminating Revenue Evils, Says Boston Merchant

An honest, "above-board tax" on retail sales, to be collected from the buyer only at the time of his purchase, is advocated by John Shepard, Jr., head of the Shepard Stores of Boston and Providence.

Shepard, in an interview, today, says that he has come to the conclusion that "the sales tax as I have suggested would solve many of the government's heaviest problems, add vastly to its revenue and eliminate much of the pyramiding of tax costs so prevalent under the present system."

He suggests that the sales tax be levied at the rate of one cent on all sales between 25 and 75 cents; two cents on all between 75 cents and $1.25, and a straight 2 per cent. on transactions above the last figure.

"I would add this tax to the tail end of all regular sales slips," he said.

"If you purchase a frying pan for 50 cents you would pay 51 cents, the extra penny going to Uncle Sam. If your frying pan cost $2 you would pay $2.04.

"It is high time for the government to remove the burdensome and oppressome excess profits tax and so-called luxury taxes and adopt a simple and logical system such as the sales tax, if properly administered, would prove to be.

"It seems to me after considerable study that the sales tax paid direct by the consumer and thoroughly understood by him would enormously reduce cost of collection and eliminate many of the evils of our present method. Certainly it would result in the more just and even distribution of the tax burden."

OVERTIME RAIL PAY BANNED

Federal Board Eliminates Time and a Half Rate Paid Workers

Chicago, June 29.—Railway labor chiefs gathered here to decide a course of action on the 12 per cent. wage slash, which by order of the U. S. Railway Labor Board will chop $400,000,000 from railway workers' pay, were confronted today by further adverse action of the board.

In a new ruling the board eliminated overtime pay at the rate of time and a half for all workers. However, in another ruling, the railway workers gained a temporary advantage, as the board by indefinitely extending the operation of the national agreements which on April 14 it had directed should terminate Friday permits the present wage scale to continue until agreements between the employing roads and the men have been reached.

FANS ALL SET TO GIVE BRAVES GREATEST RECEPTION IN YEARS

ENTHUSED BY WORK ON ROAD

Boston Team Has Chance to Climb at Giants' Expense in Short Series

By Nick Flatley.

The Boston Braves were here today for the most boisterous reception accorded a National League team in this corner of the universe since that afternoon when more than 50,000 fans turned out in 1915 to celebrate the opening of the big ball yard.

Boston fandom has been all stirred up by the wild career of the Mitchmen out on the road, where they collected three series and divided as many more, winning fifteen games and losing nine.

The season's sensations are home for but four days, but they hold forth promise of hectic battling. The Giants, next ahead in standing of the clubs, are the invaders. The long end of this engagement would put the Braves, as Jim Shanton calls them, right on the fringe of second place and in position to start a long stern chase after the leading Pirates.

* * *

The team arrived home yesterday morning, and had a day to rest up preparatory for the large celebration. Most of the athletes went out and viewed the ball game at the Fenway. Watching the other fellows work is their idea of a large time on a day off.

* * *

The native outfit is escorting as many .300 thumpers as most leagues possess. Cruise and Nicholson, the reversible left fielders, are two, three in the league circuit batting parade and pushing Hornsby dangerously. Southworth, Barbare, Boeckel, Gibson and Powell are thumping over the well-known mark, and all the rest of the regulars are mighty close to it.

Out on the trails the team's consistent hitting was the wonder and despair of hostile managers. At least eight of the victories on alien lots were accomplished by rallies in the closing chapters. The club has the punch and the confidence back of it that makes a real championship possibility.

* * *

Outfielder Al Nixon, who broke his wrist when the team was last home, is ready for action again. He's expected to step in and hit .300. All the Braves who were laid off pulled the stunt.

Manager Mitchell is perfectly satisfied with the way his athletes acted on the road.

"If we can play the baseball at home we did away," he declared. "The Braves will be very close to the top in another month. We are home for the greater part of July, and Boston support will be a great thing for the club.

"After battling before hostile crowds a little home cheering will be a necessary tonic. The team isn't a collection of stars, but a bunch of good, game ball players, pulling together, and never giving up. The champion team to 'lick' didn't have any more drive than these boys.

"We all knew that when our pitchers got working well the club would clinch. They stood up splendidly on the road. Now and then one had an off day, but as a general rule, they came through finely, and made the hits we were getting count.

"And they should be better before we get through playing in Boston."

* * *

Large Joseph Gearhart, whose arm has recovered the strength so strangely missing during April and May, was ready to pitch the opener against the Giants, who are some five games out in front.

* * *

The pilot of the outfit expects Boston fans to be greatly surprised at the improved play around second base. Barbare and Ford, who were a trifle shaky early in the year, got their signals connecting on the voyage just ended. All through the West their infield play was one of the features of the Brave revolution.

Second base was the only weak spot on the club when the team started to win back in May, and even then one could observe steady improvement, as Messrs. Ford and Barbare became acquainted out around the pillow.

* * *

This was the final appearance of the Giants here, through one of the queer schedule arrangements that crop up now and then. The Polo Grounders go to New York Sunday and Monday, and then don't collide with the McGrawns until September.

* * *

Next week the team returns to the Wigwam, and remains practically the whole month of July. In that stretch all the Western clubs will be entertained, and a splendid opportunity offered for a serious and telling incursion into the Pirates' lead.

Today Boston was happy with a return of the old baseball enthusiasm—sadly missing for the past few years. The Braves are in a spot now to capture the populace, which is anxious to be captured.

Uncle Sam to Collect Million on Fight

New York, June 29.—The real winner of the big fight Saturday will be Uncle Sam. His slice of the gate receipts will be larger than those of Carpentier and Dempsey combined—after their surtax is paid.

Dempsey will pay to the Treasury $137,510 and Carpentier's tax will be $77,310. And after those nice lump sums your Uncle Samuel will begin collecting from the promoters, referee, timekeeper, trainers, rubbers, sparring partners, seconds, principals in the preliminary bouts, contractors who built the arena, concession holders and all others who make a penny on the fight.

By the time all the collections are in, internal revenue officials believe the government's total profits on the "battle of the century" will be close to a million dollars.

INTERCITY GAME STIRS FANS

Boston and New York School-boy Baseball Teams Clash at Fenway Saturday

By Fred C. Lane.

Of prime importance to school sport followers in the intercity ball game between the New York and Boston all-scholastic nines, which is scheduled to take place at Fenway Park on Saturday afternoon.

The affair, which is the first of its kind to be staged in this city, has attracted considerable attention. The followers and friends of interscholastic sports have made big inroads on the ticket supply. The New York team, which was picked after careful deliberation on the part of the Gotham scribes, is bent on carrying home a victory.

Boston Boys Are Hard Hitters

The Boston team represents the hardest group of hitters that could be obtained from local schoolboy ranks. Each man has been mentioned in at least one all-scholastic team. Bill Fallon, who was listed to do the pitching, will probably see the game from the bench owing to a sore arm. In his place will step Jimmy Cassell of H. C. H., who has been the mainstay in that smooth-working baseball nine.

Thorpe and McLaughlin will be the battery for the Gotham nine. The former is considered the equal of Walter Gautreau, unanimous choice for local backstop honors. Thorpe, who hurled for the George Washington team, has had but one defeat chalked against his record this season.

It is the plan of the management to have a direct wire from the fight to the park. The results and other details will be given to the spectators between the innings.

The teams will line up as follows:

BOSTON.	NEW YORK.
Foley, 2b.	Kinlaman, s.s.
Gautreau, c.	Knap, l.f.
Condy, 1b.	Johnson, 3b.
Core, s.s.	Thompson, 2b.
Zarakov, l.f.	McLaughlin, c.
Myron, 2b.	Israel, c.f.
Day, c.f.	Stark, r.f.
Doherty r.f.	Waterbury, 1b.

GOLF WIN FOR ALBEMARLE

Wright and Schofield Down Ouimet and Guilford, 3 and 2

By Robert E. Harlow

Would you like to do a round of golf in 47 and find yourself outplayed? That doesn't happen very often, but Francis Ouimet had the unfortunate experience yesterday, when he and Jesse Guilford lost to Fred J. Wright, Jr., and Parker Schofield, three and two, in a Woodland vs. Albemarle team match at Albemarle.

* * *

Teamwork won for Albemarle. Wright and Schofield worked together, as they had to in order to beat out Ouimet, who was getting along strong and playing that little help from Guilford, who had a bad day. Jesse only helped Frank on one hole, and the other Albemarlers had the match won by a three and two count.

* * *

Wright was around in 70 and Schofield in 73, but their better ball was 67. Ouimet had the low individual score, a 67, and Guilford was 73, conceding a five at the sixth which he did not play out; but their better ball was 65, Guilford knocking off two shots at the 17th, with a four to Ouimet's six.

* * *

Wright won three holes and halved four. Schofield won two holes and halved four. They both halved two and lost three. Ouimet won two holes and halved four. Guilford won one hole and did not half any alone. He and Ouimet both halved six and lost five. These figures show that Ouimet played the better ball of the Woodland pair.

* * *

It is too much of contrast for any golfer to take on the better ball of Wright and Schofield at Albemarle. A sixty-two isn't done at golf, even at Albemarle.

Ouimet had a number of putts go to the rim of the cup and stay out.

* * *

Ouimet's best tee shot was at the eleventh, where he was way over the road, at the sixth where his spoon was hole high and ten feet from the pin, and at the sixteenth, where his pitch left him a short putt. Schofield's tee shot to the fifth left him a ten-foot putt, which he holed, and he was closer to the pin at this green than any of the second round, but missed the putt.

* * *

In the matter of hitting shots, Ouimet looked the best. There was more finish and less effort to his swing than to that of the others, and his putts were well hit, holding a straight line and being up. While he had no luck with the ball dropping for him at a number of holes, it rimmed the cup or ran by the side.

* * *

Guilford was not himself. He putted badly. He was cutting the ball instead of hitting it with a smooth following stroke.

Wright drove and putted well, most essential at Albemarle. His chip shots were not as good.

Schofield played up to expectations. He shared equally with Wright in the Albemarle victory.

Wright and Schofield's better ball:

4 4 4 4 3 4 2 4 4—34
4 4 4 4 3 3 3 3 5—33—67

Ouimet's round:

4 5 4 4 3 3 3 4 3—33
4 5 4 3 3 3 3 5 6—34—67

Guilford had a four at the 17th, making the Ouimet-Guilford better ball 65.

There is a surprising amount of golfing talent among the boys in Massachusetts who have not yet reached their sixteenth birthday. This was brought out at the junior championship which started Tuesday at Bellevue Golf Club, Melrose, with a field of 162 starters. It required a score of 85 or better to make a place in the match play which opened today.

* * *

When thirty-three youngsters can do 85 or better in a qualifying round the future of Massachusetts golf is assured. Even more remarkable than the general excellent quality of the play were the rounds of Clark Hodder of Commonwealth and G. Polin of Chestnut Hill, who both did 72. William Quinlan and E. Burton were 76. Some golf for the boys.

DEMPSEY OR GEORGES

Sentiment and Championship Bouts "War Hero, Shipyard Slacker"

By JACK CONWAY

Dempsey or Carpentier? International politics and other supposed important matters of state have been placed in the background while the world waits to see whether Jack Dempsey, an American, can defeat Georges Carpentier, a Frenchman. The ring records of the two men lead most persons familiar with sporting events to pick Dempsey to win. Those individuals, however, who permit sentiment to sway their judgment are favoring the Frenchman. Dempsey fought the war from a shipyard, wearing patent leather shoes, while Carpentier did his fighting in France in an aviator's uniform.

* * *

Dempsey would be a more popular fighter today than Carpentier if it were not for his shipyard record. The champion is more congenial and obliging than the challenger. But with all kindness of heart and good cheer he is unable to live down the fact that he failed to take his place in the fighting ranks of this nation during the big fight.

* * *

This writer, knowing the limited mentality of many of our so-called champions, does not blame Dempsey for entering the service as much as we do those gentlemen who have become wealthy as a result of the punching power of the young giant from Colorado. Dempsey would have entered the service just as quickly as millions of other young men, if he had been in the proper environment. Boxers are taught to give as much weight to some of the idiotic advice of their managers as respectable business men accord to Supreme Court decisions.

* * *

Fighting and not war records, however, will win at Jersey City, Saturday afternoon. No fighter has been on Dempsey since he first attracted attention outside of his home district. Carpentier, on the other hand, has lost a number of battles. He has also quit to opponents. It would be a queer turn of events if Carpentier, war hero, should quit to Dempsey, "shipyard slacker."

* * *

Carpentier is a great first round puncher. He can hit with either hand. Maybe he will give cause for a celebration in Paris before the big battle has gone a few rounds.

* * *

Dempsey or Carpentier? Write your own ticket. But don't give too much credit to sentiment.

Big Bout at 3 P. M. Daylight Time

Jersey City, June 29.—According to the schedule, which Tex Rickard insists will be carried out to the minute, the Dempsey-Carpentier bout will start at 2 o'clock Eastern standard time, or at 3 o'clock daylight saving time. The preliminaries will start about 1 o'clock daylight time.

"MARY ANN" SCORED MANY KAYOES

New York, June 29.—The fight fans who are anxious to wager money that Bob Martin stops Frank Moran in their 15-round bout Friday night at the Boxing Bowne, should closely pursue Moran's record during the last seven months. Moran, while abroad, took part in five battles, and in each case his famous "Mary Ann" stowed away his opponent before the limit.

The popular Pittsburgher stopped Tom Cowler in six rounds, rocked Bombardier Wells to sleep in nine rounds, flattened Joe Beckett in two rounds, knocked out Jeannes in two and put a quietus to Frank Goddard in less than six seconds of battling, thereby, who will picture in type and drawings the crucial moments of the championship clash.

JACK VEIOCK, sporting editor of the International News, observer of every bout of National importance for a dozen years, who will describe the contest blow for blow.

And a host of trained assistants, photographers and telegraphers with John R. Gillooly, the Boston American's sporting editor at the ringside primed to get the news to you first as they will.

SERES HAS HARD JOB AHEAD

Paired With Miquel, He Will Try to Defeat Wiley and Coburn at Revere

Georges Seres, world's champion motor paced rider, faces a hard assignment tonight at the Revere Cycle Track, when he, teamed with Lucien Miquel, representing France, meets George Wiley and Willie Coburn, American riders, in a forty-mile motor-paced team race.

While Seres and Wiley are regarded as the distance gainers for their respective teams, each expects much assistance from his teammate. Miquel has made a distinct impression at Revere by his clever riding. Coburn gained international fame by winning the New York six day race last Winter when he was paired with Rogers.

I see that of it was a serious falsehood. I don't know who started those stories or who did the actual writing of them. That's another lie uttered only to back up the original one. I challenge the man who wrote the story and sent it broadcast to bring one man connected with this camp to be talked to who didn't ridicule the story.

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. Forbes

New York, June 29.—Will the average price level for commodities and goods decline much more?

Roughly, the general price level is still nearly 50 per cent. above what it was in 1914.

At one time it was fully double the 1914 figure.

* * *

In these unsettled days it is impossible to foretell with any degree of certainty how prices or anything else will move in the near future. One can at best merely hazard guesses, based on a close scrutiny of what has already happened, what is now happening and the undercurrents visible in certain directions. The whole subject, however, is of such timely importance and enters so largely into the consideration of business matters today, that one is tempted to present some facts and some comment.

* * *

The United States has made more progress than any other leading country in correcting the gross inflation bred by the war. European prices, as a whole, show a much greater percentage of advance over pre-war prices than do prices in this country. Of course, the abnormal expansion in the volume of currency now outstanding in European countries has much to do with it. Take Germany, for example, the necessaries of life cost several—a dozen—times as much as before the war when measured by German money. But, meanwhile, the value of the German mark has collapsed terribly.

Four marks used to be equal to about one American dollar. Today the German mark is worth only about 1-2 cents in American money. In this country there was a slackening of the downward trend in prices towards the end of Winter, but although the pace has not again equalled that experienced last Fall, the trend has latterly been distinctly downwards. Last week, for example, Dun's reported three declines to one advance. It is entirely probable that the June averages will reveal a rather substantial decrease.

* * *

Quite a number of authorities lean to the view that the price level will not go appreciably lower during the second half of this year, although they expect the level to remain for quite some time at about 50 per cent. above the 1914 figures.

My own opinion is that the readjustments which remain to be made in various important industries will more than offset the moderate recoveries which we can logically expect in quite a few directions.

For example, the metal division may show some slight recovery in copper, lead and tin, but further reductions in iron and steel and in iron and steel products are already clearly within sight.

* * *

Wool and cotton may conceivably do somewhat better, but grain prices are more likely to show the effect of the world's new crops become available.

Although both sugar and coffee are selling lower than at any time last year, it is not at all certain that they will not sink still further, as they are both in superabundant supply, and sugar is still 2 per cent. above its low figure for 1914.

Packing products at wholesale are low to day and may go lower, probably should credit facilities make foreign buying possible on a considerable scale.

* * *

Building materials, on the other hand, are still relatively dear, and likely to become cheaper rather than upwards.

So are shoes at retail, although the leather market is doubtless over its worst.

Agricultural machinery is scheduled for price-cutting, and farm implements, automobiles, motor trucks, etc., have been tending lower, without any guaranty that the bottom has been reached.

* * *

Wages are of course an important factor in influencing price movements. Inasmuch as wages are still gravitating towards lower levels, with an accompanying increase in efficiency, production costs are tending in many directions. This must be given due consideration in trying to analyze the probable trend of the price average. So, too, must the steady contractions in the volume of currency and credit outstanding.

Instead of prices remaining almost 50 per cent. above those ruling in 1914, I look for further sagging. It would not be illogical if the present trend continued until we were not much more than 25 per cent. above 1914 figures.

Bradstreets' index, which represents chiefly raw materials, now stands only 15 per cent. above the 1913 average. Dun's index is now 87 per cent. above the pre-war figure, but the Bureau of Labor's index is still fully 50 per cent. higher than in 1913.

In the interest of business recuperation, the best thing that could happen would be immediate improvement in prices and prices all brought under cost of production, and prompt reductions in industries which are still demanding prices out of line with present-day conditions. Leaders in industries which are delaying inevitable price reductions are retarding the return of activity and prosperity.

Those of us who are classed as consumers can now feel safe in resuming normal buying of a great many of the things we need. If we loosen up and purchase normal amounts of goods we know are now attractively-priced, and steer clear of the things that are still too dear, we can quickly bring home to the high price people that they are on the wrong track.

Better Demand for Leather

Chicago tanners report a little more demand for leather and an upward price trend for thirty days. But orders from the shoe trade are still sub-normal.

MOTOR ISSUES MAKE GAINS

Steels Up and Oils Rule Higher; Rails Are Steady on Higher Level

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York at noon, being but little below the best level of a quiet forenoon. Motor issues were among the leaders, rails rallied and steels showed material gains. Oils advanced with the exception of Mexican Petroleum. This Doheney stock was off all the morning and by noon was showing more than two points loss, on a moderate of less volume than before this week. Most noon transactions aggregating about 500,000 shares.

Among strongest stocks were American Sumatra, Chesapeake & Ohio, General Electric, International Paper, U. S. Realty, Pan American, Indiana, Texas & Pacific and N. Y. Central. Trade was dull on Wall Street, Dutch, Texas & Pacific and N. Y. Central. They were up from one to four points at noon.

Call money opened at 5½ per cent. Foreign exchange was easier. Opening quotations being: Demand sterling $3.73¾, off ¼ cent; French francs, 6.60, off ¼ cent; Belgian, 6.04¾, off $.0063; marks $.0136, off $.0002½.

BEGAN WITH GRAINS.

Strength permeated the list when trading began, almost all stocks making gains on early transactions. The opening was a surprise in one feature, excepting Mexican Petroleum, and changes ruled narrow, whether up or down. Mexican Petroleum began with 1½ loss, recovered all of it and more and then acted almost four points before the close. Rails led the general movement of the upturn, showing the most group strength. Rails were steady and other groups showed improvement. Crucible doing the best. There was very little movement in sugars and tobaccos. Some profit-taking soon affected a number of issues, but while the list reacted slightly it did not become weak. Among active issues Baldwin and General Asphalt led an indecisive period. Coppers was a strong specialty, advancing the most up to mid-morning.

BETTER TONE TO STEELS.

Steel stocks had a better tone, reflecting belief that this industry is passing through its worst period of depression and that by the end of the Summer a further revival will begin to mend. Reduction of wage rates give roads a chance to buy rails and equipment more freely. Indirectly car company securities are therefore held in higher esteem, while Washington legislation is generally friendly to the government is giving carriers better markets. Broadly speaking, there is a more confident feeling around Wall Street. But business conditions at large seem far from satisfactory and it is felt that it will take much longer time to work back to normal.

WALL ST. GOSSIP

By MONITOR

NEW YORK, June 29. — Under the stimulus of the announcement of the settlement of the British coal strike, stocks opened with fractional advances and for a time everything that these were extended into substantial gains. Irregularity soon developed, with special pressure against the coppers, Canadian Pacific, U. S. Rubber and a few other specialties.

THE Independent Steels continued to reflect the unfavorable trade conditions and some further trimming came into this group on rather pessimistic advices from Pittsburg. The fact that operations in this district have declined during the week and that price-cutting is the order of the day. The furnaces of the Minnesota Steel Company's Duluth plant are close indefinitely according to these reports.

WAREHOUSE men are seeking to meet the cut announced by steel in steel products in order to move increasing tonnages. This is rendered more difficult in spots by freight embargoes which are considerably under domestic prices. Steel billets from Belgium are being laid down on the Atlantic seaboard at $21.59 per long ton as compared with $35 for the same domestic price of $35 per short ton. Steel men say very frankly that they see no means even with a substantial reduction in labor costs of meeting this competition. Therefore transportation costs must be radically cut before they can compete.

ANOTHER phase of the import problem is presented by the large arrivals of goods from Germany. The U. S. Mail steamship Hudson from Bremen on Monday arrived with over 2,200 ton cargo, the largest individual consignment thus far received. It consists principally of cotton goods, wares, chemicals and dyes. With jobbers experiencing difficulty in disposing of their stocks of domestic commodities at present basis of prices, the imports which are arriving are cheaper than the quotations prevailing here for domestic goods present a difficult situation.

SOME rather striking developments in connection with the receivership of the Gilliland Oil Company are discussed with interest in London by New York bankers who have been interested in the corporation. They say that President C. C. Gilliland, without the knowledge of the directors here, has sold the former partner the Louisiana and Texas properties, which were purchased for $2,500,000, payable in sixty days from December 22. The Texas interests probably will contest the transfer of the properties.

THE market was in a state of lethargy before the noon hour, a condition which obtained throughout most of the afternoon session. Aside from erratic fluctuations in Mexican Petroleum there was little activity. Even the announcement of a reduction of 25 cents per barrel in Pennsylvania Crude Oil and of 15 to 16 cents per barrel in other Eastern grades failed to bring more than small offerings of domestic oils into the market.

The increases, with higher rates in force, were small in cause of business depression.

HUNT POISON IN STOVER BODY

Maine Officials Exhume Remains of Accused Man's First Wife, Buried Six Years Ago

Ellsworth, Me., June 29.—The body of Mrs. Susan L. Stover, first wife of the wealthy Bronksville farmer now held for the grand jury on a charge of attempting to poison his second wife, is to be exhumed.

Medical Examiner Charles C. Knowlton of Hancock County and Dr. F. N. Whittier of Bowdoin College will examine the organs of the body for traces of strychnine and will endeavor to determine how the woman met her death.

The first Mrs. Stover died more than six years ago after severe convulsions and was buried in Mountain Rest Cemetery at Bronksville.

Aid War Veterans First, Is Demand of Disabled Vets

Washington, June 29.—Resolutions demanding that no bonus legislation be made applicable to able-bodied ex-service men "until every disabled soldier has been taken care of" were passed at the convention of the National Disabled Soldiers' League.

Two resolutions were introduced extending the good wishes of the league to Carpentier in his forthcoming fight with Dempsey. One of the resolutions, after extending greetings to Carpentier, declared:

"He it remembered, That when you rushed to the front, another ruined to cover."

Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, principal speaker at the session, declared the attitude shown toward disabled soldiers in this country was unbelievable, shameful, incredible.

Members of the special Senate committee investigating the government's care of ex-service men have determined to personally acquaint themselves with conditions in the Federal and "contract" institutions where disabled veterans are being treated and rehabilitated.

The determination was reached at an executive meeting, at which it was decided to start on a tour of inspection of all hospitals and training centers where the veterans are located beginning early in July.

SHOOTS WOMAN, THEN SELF

Worcester Man Wounds Woonsocket Divorcee and Dies at Her Feet

Woonsocket, R. I., June 29.—Driven mad by jealousy, Joseph Dinnelle, a mill hand, shot and wounded, probably fatally, Mrs. Hilda July Perreault, thirty-six years old, of No. 135 Cumberland street, and turned the revolver against himself, dying at the feet of the woman.

Dinnelle, who was fifty-two years old, and a foreman at the Manville Company's mill, Manville, and who lived at No. 56 Grand street, Woonsocket, had been paying attentions to Perreault, a divorcee, for several months, but she would not hear his pleas.

TREASURY HEAD IS ONLY 29

President Harding Nominates S. Parker Gilbert as Under Secretary

Washington, June 29.—Not yet thirty years old and under-Secretary of the United States Treasury!

Such is the record of S. Parker Gilbert, twenty-nine, of Bloomfield, N. J., whose nomination for the newly-created Treasury post has just been made by President Harding.

As under-secretary, Mr. Gilbert becomes the ranking officer of the Treasury next to the holder of the portfolio, Mr. Mellon.

Graduating from Rutgers College in 1912, Mr. Gilbert entered the Harvard Law School from which he received the degree of Bachelor of Laws Cum Laude in 1915.

Length of Life Depends On Mind, Doctors Declare

New York, June 29.—Is it true that your mind may prolong your years?

Dr. Arthur Gates, head of the psychology department of Teacher's College here, today indorsed the statement made by Dr. H. Warner before the Allied Medical Associations of America in Atlantic City.

Dr. Gates said:

"Given proper conditions, such as lack of pre-disposition to organic weakness and susceptibility to disease germs, mental processes may prolong life greatly beyond the average span. Whether a hundred and sixty could be fixed as the mark of the old age, as Dr. Warner suggests, I don't know. I believe we have proven a notion of centenarians without difficulty."

Here are the laws, as gathered from Dr. Gates' discourse, for insuring enjoyment of this miraculous lengthening of life:

You must cultivate the equanimity of a cigar store Indian; make anger, irritation, impatience and haste fantastic as his wooden smile.

You must practice such supercourage as will look stony-eyed upon anger, forgetting the name of fear.

You must live upon the mystic height above grief, melancholy and sadness—emotions twined with human ties.

You must cast out worry—vampire of the spirit.

5 MILLION CONES DESTROYED

Health Officials Confiscate Rancid Containers of Ice Cream

Five million unfilled ice cream cones were confiscated and destroyed today by the Boston Health Department.

They were found in the establishment of the Columbia Ice Cream Horn Company and were declared rancid.

The actual value of the cones to their owners was variously estimated at from $5,000 to $15,000.

A wrecking squad was sent to the establishment to smash the cones and make sure they were not sold.

Health officials did not specify what ingredient of the edible cones had turned rancid.

Mr. Hays' Post Office Saving Plan

It Will Help All Business

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

The "rich man's panic" is still going on, having lasted already twenty months. If you shed tears about the continual dropping of stocks, shed BIG tears, for big men, chiefly, are paying the bills. Since the first of this year about 90,000,000 shares of stock have been sold, and it has been one steady drop. By and by there will be splendid bargains. Watch, be patient.

The most hopeful thing for business and especially for big business, is Postmaster-General Hays' determination to make the United States Postal Savings Bank what it ought to be, an encouragement to saving and thrift, and not a discouragement.

An excellent public announcement by the City Bank of New York says:

In backward countries banks are but little used by the masses of the people, and money is hoarded, becoming a dead asset. A bank becomes a pool, into which are drained thousands of small sums, easily wasted, or, if not wasted, unproductive by themselves, and the sums so accumulated become active agencies in the life of the community. Untold millions of gold and silver have flowed into India and disappeared. If the owners would deposit them in banks or invest in industrial or railway securities, the effect would be to radically change industrial and living conditions in that country. The increased demand for labor would raise wages, the newly provided industrial equipment would increase production, the higher earnings of the people would absorb the production, and the general standard of living would be raised.

What is true of India on a gigantic scale in proportion to the wealth of the country is true of the United States, largely. Workers of foreign birth hoard money which is "a dead asset." They will trust no one but the Government of the United States.

The postmaster's plan is to pay 3 per cent. interest instead of 2, little enough, heaven knows, in these days, when the government is borrowing at 6 per cent. The postmaster's other plans for making the Postal Savings Bank convenient, including the absolute security and easy identification that will be part of a finger print system, will do much to increase prosperity that the country needs.

It is bad enough to have 5,000,000 idle workers, millions of idle machines, and idle horses and tens of millions of idle acres that should all be producing wealth. We haven't yet learned how to overcome that.

But there is no necessity for having hundreds of millions of idle money, "a dead asset," producing nothing.

Such management of the Postal Savings Bank as Mr. Hays is carefully planning will bring out the hidden money, the people will be allowed to deposit it when they please, get interest at once, and draw out the money when they please. They will realize that they have the safest, most convenient savings bank system in the world.

Hampton Fire a Lesson in Vital Need of Reforestation

The fire at Hampton Beach, which destroyed $300,000 worth of wood in a few hours and deprived hundreds of thousands of people of the pleasurable enjoyment of the incidents of a day at a popular seashore resort, is this week's reminder of the ghastly losses which America suffers almost every week from fire.

It also reminds us of our diminishing forest resources, because we are losing our forests by a combination of selfish indifference to the rights of the future, and the careless treatment of fires. Next to the reckless waste of our timber by unscientific exploitation of the forests, and by the wanton failure to replant, we are losing one of our greatest sources of wealth by fire, and it is bringing in the wake of its loss a whole train of other losses.

We not only need our forests for the lumber they give us, but we need them because they are nature's reservoirs for storing up and regulating the supply of water in the soil, and for preserving the loam and the productive surface of the soil. The porous ground interwoven by the roots of the trees and the leaves and the brush of the forest hold back the water when it pours down from the heavens, and like an automatic device it regulates the supply of water to the arable fields. In the Winter it gathers the snow, and when the Spring comes, it regulates its melting, so that the streams and rivers may get a slow but constant supply, which the watersheds need so much in the Spring.

But when the forests are cut down and not replanted or are burned over, there is nothing to hold back the water, and when the rain falls on the mountain slopes or the hillsides it rushes down the declivities in torrents, washing away with it the fertile loam and scarring the surface of the earth with deep ravines and filling the rivers until they become wild, destructive torrents, sweeping everything before them, bridges, houses, cattle, men and women.

Next to the protection of the health of our citizens and the protection of the country from outside aggression there is no more important duty than that of reforesting our waste land.

A Brake on Gambling

In addition to its simplicity the sales tax offers advantages as a check on gambling. For years farmers have complained that trading in futures on grain resulted in losses to them.

They market their wheat, corn and oats at the end of the harvest time, when the market is filled, getting a low price.

Speculators then juggle the market and take a large spread between producer and consumer.

Congress after Congress has been asked by the agricultural interests to bring this situation under control. Voluminous debate has ended with the condition unchanged.

There is another side to this matter of trading in futures, but that is another story. A tax on sales, however, if levied on all transactions, would reduce sheer gambling both on produce exchanges and in stock markets.

If before the gambler in either stocks or commodities could figure an expected profit he should have to pay in cash a cent on every dollar of his trading, plus margins, he would often hesitate.

Suppose he were planning to buy a hundred shares of a stock at 75 on a 10 per cent. margin—an outlay of $750. The sales tax would make him put up $75 more. At present when he sells the stock his tax is only $4. A plunger might pay $75 for a time, but in the long run the man who only gambled in stocks, cotton or grain would be put out of the "board room" by an honest sales tax.

On purchases for genuine investment the tax would not be onerous. But on rapid exchanges in speculative markets it would be a wholesome brake.

Freedom of the Individual

By Rev. L. G. Landenberger

I AM coming to believe that society has limited the freedom of the individual too much. If society has the right to prevent a person from drinking home-made beer or wine in his own home, because society thinks it harmful, would not society have the right to prevent a person from eating too much food?

No one thinks of interfering with the rights of the individual in eating too much or doing a thousand things that are really harmful. Society should permit the manufacture and sale of liquor, but to be sold in packages and not consumed at the place where purchased. This would do away with the saloon, which has been a great menace.

It may be that men and women have not reached that condition which enables them to use liquor without abusing it; that it is, on the whole, better that the freedom of the individual be limited for the sake of the larger good. It does seem that in the light of the principles laid down that the genius of the New Church, of which I am a minister, is such as not to deprive the individual of a freedom that does not mean a menace, for the philosophy of my church says abuse does not do away with use.

-:- The Actor -:-

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

OH, man, with your wonderful dower,
Oh, woman, with genius and grace,
You can teach the whole world with your power
If you are but worthy the place.
The stage is a force and a factor
In moulding the thought of the day,
If only the heart of the actor
Is high as the theme of the play.

No discourse or sermon can reach us,
Through feeling, to reason, like you;
No author can stir us and teach us
With lessons as subtle and true.
Your words and your gestures obeying,
We weep or rejoice with your part,
And the player, behind all his playing,
He ought to be great as his art.

No matter what role you are giving,
No matter what skill you betray,
The everyday life you are living
Is certain to color the play.
The thoughts we call secret and hidden
Are creatures of malice, in fact.
They steal forth unseen and unbidden,
And permeate motive and act.

The genius that shines like a comet
Fills only one part of God's plan,
If the lesson the world derives from it
Is marred by the life of the man.
Be worthy your work if you love it;
The king should be fit for the crown;
Stand high as your art, or above it,
And make us look up and not down.

To the Editor

Give It to Soldiers

Editor Boston American:

A few days ago I noticed that it was suggested to stop the Carpentier-Dempsey fight until the soldiers had received their bonus. In your paper lately you have been having a series of excellent cartoons trying to get the public to see what should be done for the soldiers who risked their lives—and many come back cripples—so that we might have our freedom.

So far not much has been done to help them. From articles I have seen in the papers I've noticed that the United States Government will receive several hundreds thousand dollars from the big fight on July 2. I am in favor of helping the crippled soldiers by using the money obtained from the fight for their comfort?

IF HE FAILS DON'T SAY WORLD IS WRONG

By Beatrice Fairfax.

"FOR four years we've been friends," writes Betty. "I've always known I could count on him for anything I wanted to do. Jack has been devotion itself. And that's what makes it so terrible that he should have failed me completely and without any warning.

"I know he feels cheap, but that doesn't alter matters. He's too proud to acknowledge his fault, and surely you can't expect me to go to a man who has slighted me horribly and tell him it's all right and I'll stand for his insult. This makes me very skeptical. Are there any men a girl is to trust? If a friend of such long standing and who seemed so tried and true can treat me so shabbily, how dare I ever again have confidence in anyone?"

Letters of this type come to me daily. They have a note of bitterness which the facts do not justify.

Years of Devotion

To weigh against a moment of disloyalty there are years of devotion. To offset one hurt there are countless kindnesses to remember. And yet the paramount issue seems always to be the one cruelty rather than the many courtesies.

Suppose it were the other way around. Imagine that some one who had shown four years of brutality and enmity and unfitness were to do one fine thing. Would that wipe out every trace of suspicion and regret? Or would Betty say: "That was an astonishingly fine thing Jack did. It seems as if he is beginning to regret his rudeness and unfairness and to show a great deal of character. I'll watch him, and if he goes on being so decent and honest and square I'll alter my judgment of him and conclude that either he's outgrown his former ways or that I've called up something better in his nature."

But one manifestation of decency wouldn't persuade Betty to trust the former offender with anything of great importance.

The case is even stronger when friendship stumbles for once and falls. The moment may be caused by any one of a dozen trivial or great causes. But it's only a moment.

No matter how a friend offends, if back of that moment of failure there stretch days and months and years of faith and devotion, are they suddenly become nothing? Isn't their testimony all in favor of the person who may have been ill, or mentally below par, or startled, or temporarily jarred from his normal attitudes when he failed?

If a friend who has always seemed tried and true fails once his failure is not so great as that of the person who refuses to give him another chance.

Too Proud

When Betty says that Jack is too proud to acknowledge his fault she means that he is so ashamed of himself that he dare not ask for mercy. And when she practically dares me to advise her to "go to a man who has slighted her horribly and tell him she'll stand for his in-

ARE YOU GROWING OLD?

Don't worry so much about the indications of old age which manifest themselves so much more frequently than they did a few years ago.

You cannot help growing old nor can you expect to do what you did when you were younger.

It does no good to worry and fret as age advances.

The more you think about how long you will be able to hold out, the sooner you will reach the place where you are completely worn out.

One of the best things you can do to prolong your days of real usefulness is to be cheerful.

When you are cheerful you have more confidence in yourself.

A cheerful heart accomplishes more work with less wear.

Worry has taken the lives of more persons than sickness and disease which come without worry.

Take more precautions to safeguard your own health as you grow older and you will feel your handicaps less.

Favor yourself in the hours when you are not employed and seek the right sort of recreation.

THERE IS A JOB FOR YOU IN LIFE

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

Copyright, 1921, by Premier Syndicate, Inc.

ARE you among the blessed who have found your work?

If not, then there is one of two things for you to do—either you must set out to find what fits you or you must fit yourself into your present job.

There is even a third possibility, and that is best of all and more nearly a universal panacea. That is to make a success of our common task, the development of a fine personality.

Personality does not depend upon job or station or money or opportunity. Herein each of us is self made. In the building of personality each of us can score a success.

The world is full of misfits. One means the world of practical affairs. Relatively rarely you find a man or a woman who is doing just what he or she ought or what he or she chose to do.

Thrust Upon Us

In the main our vocations, professions or jobs are thrust upon us or we are where we are as the result of accident. Now and then you light upon a blissful one who is engaged in perfectly congenial work.

Unfortunately, too, our sheer human powers—intellectual and mechanical—are so little educated that we do not easily dare to change our vocations, for fear lest we should not fit into the next job even so well as into this one.

Henry Ward Beecher, the world-famous preacher, used to say modestly that his folks had spoiled a good farmer in order to make a poor minister of him. The writer knows a fairly effective publicist who had a ministerial career imposed upon him at the ripe age of nine!

In Infancy

Vocational education and vocational guidance are still in their infancy. That is a professional task demanding the rarest sympathy and the wisest judgment. Even then only minimum benefits may be expected.

Meanwhile an unintelligent parenthood, commonly seeking in offspring the compensation for its own disappointments, dooms children to impossible careers and unhappy maturity.

No wonder that Peter Pan, lying in his crib and hearing his fond parents discuss how he would grow up and go to college and become President, seized the opportunity that very night to fly off to Never Never Land!

Our whole social structure, with its haphazard and diversified organization (or lack of organization), is such an artificial, sorry scheme of things that every lover of human beings, eager for their happiness at least through congenial occupation—must often wish to shatter it to bits and then remould it nearer to the heart's desire.

As it is, we must make the best of the mess. At any stage, but certainly in youth, we must strive earnestly to see what we were made to do and then set ourselves earnestly to do it.

To learn what you can do you must first of all know yourself. That's not easy, because we are so ready to fool ourselves. Conceit should not cut short the process of self-searching.

Wrong Work

Even if you have been at the wrong work, which poorly expresses you or gives you but little joy, be brave—now that you know yourself better—and try to find a job that is more nearly suited to you.

If you fear to continue to seek and find, then stop quarreling with your present task or with yourself. Buckle down to your job, bring to it your best energies and your utmost intelligence, and soon you will experience the joy of working—and probable promotion, in any case, there remains the common task of all the human race, from which even presidents and emperors and captains of industry are not exempt.

In this real task the lowliest can score a splendid success—the task of making a fine personality.

For this you are fitted. For this you may have talent, perhaps even genius.

There is a job for you!
